OFFICE.	1827.	1847.	1867.	REMARKS.
Paymaster General - - -	One	One	-	In 1848 Earl Granville, being Vice President of the Board of Trade, was appointed also Paymaster General (without salary), and since that time the duties of Paymaster General have been discharged by the Vice President of the Board of Trade for the time being. The Select Committee on Miscellaneous Expenditure in 1848 reported : "It does not appear to your Committee that it is necessary to continue the salaries of a President and Vice President of the Board of Trade, as one of these situations should be always remunerated by the contemporaneous tenure of some other necessary office of trust and responsibility, whose labours are light, such as the Master of the Mint or Paymaster General."
Master of the Mint - - -	One	One	-	The Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the Royal Mint state in their Report, which was presented to Parliament in 1849, "We are of opinion that the superintendence of the establishment should be entrusted to a permanent officer exempt from all other charge or duty, who should be personally responsible for the conduct of the business of the Mint in all its branches." In accordance with this recommendation, upon the resignation of the Right Honourable R. L. Sheil (the Master of the Mint), Sir J. W. Herschel was appointed to the office in 1850.

THE DEPOSITION of John Malay, of Abbeyside, a labourer, who being first duly sworn, deposes and says :—

ON Saturday last, the 29th of December 1866, I was down on the quay, about one or two o'clock, I saw the deceased, William O'Brien before me, about eight or nine perches, running to an inclosure opposite the Cobbler's sheds. Before he ran, two of the Lancers galloped past him, and as he was running to the inclosure, a third Lancer came up and struck him with the butt of the lance in the poll, and tumbled him; the horse then passed over him, but I can't say whether he touched him. Three more horses came on and passed over him. I at once ran to take the deceased, William O'Brien, up, and while doing so, the same Lancer who knocked down the deceased, rode back quite close to me. I heard another Lancer bawl to him, but I can't tell what he said. He (the Lancer who struck the deceased) pulled up and went away. I then, with the assistance of Captain Dower (a sea captain), took the deceased into the shed. Captain Dower ordered me to go for the priest, which I did, and brought him; Captain Dower remained with the deceased, William O'Brien, when I was leaving. When I returned with the priest, Doctor Anthony was with the deceased, William O'Brien. In about an hour after, he was removed to the workhouse; I sent home word to his people that he was killed; I saw the deceased dead in the workhouse on Monday last, the 31st December 1866.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—When first I saw the deceased, William O'Brien, he was standing by himself, half way between Mrs. Curreen's coal-yard and Mr. Kiely's house; there was some row going on on the bridge, between the Lancers and the people, at the time. I was some ten or twelve perches away from the crowd, and the deceased was farther away from them than I was. It was between one and two o'clock. The crowd did not extend down the quay to where O'Brien and I stood. I saw no stones or stick in O'Brien's hands, neither did I see him stoop for any; I will not swear that he might not have them in his pocket; I can't swear whether the deceased had had stones in his hands or not; but to the best of my belief, he had not. I was at home for about three hours, at ten, eleven, and twelve. At the time of the row on the bridge, I heard people say it was the voters were coming in, and the Lancers were making way for them. I can't say whether there were twenty or a thousand coming down the quay. I saw no sticks or stones with those people. I will not swear they had not them. I can't say whether there were a hundred coming down the quay. I can't tell whether any of the crowd that were coming up at the bridge reached to where O'Brien and I were standing at the time O'Brien was knocked down. The boat I tried to get into had a good many men in it; but I cannot say from one to fifty, how many were in it. I was not in a public house on that day up to two o'clock, and some of the drink I got was in Mrs. O'Neill's yard; I saw it posted up that Mrs. O'Neill's yard was a place for Mr. De La Poer's voters. It was a mistake when I said I was not in a public house on that day before two o'clock.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters.—The people were running down the quay, and the soldiers chasing them before O'Brien was killed. I saw none of the people escaping into the vessels, they were too far from the quay. The deceased, William O'Brien, was standing at the waterside, two of the soldiers passed him, and he then made an attempt to run into the Linney. I think it would be a hard job to know the soldier; he was a foxy complexion man. He charged back to me, and I put the dead man between me and the horse, to protect myself from the horse, and to allow the horse to pass me. They galloped on below Mr. Kiely's house. I saw some of the soldiers follow the people into the root market. I did not see the soldiers use their lances in the market. At the time the soldiers chased the people into the market, I saw no stones thrown, as far as I could see. To the best of my belief the Lancer was not soter. The horse he rode was a dark brown horse.

THE DEPOSITION of Augustine Dower, of Dungarvan, a Sea Captain, who being first duly sworn, deposes, and says :—

I WAS on board the "Johanna" on Saturday, the 29th December 1866, opposite Mrs. Curran's coal-yard in Dungarvan. The vessel lay between the root market and the the bridge, and the vessel was the nearest to the bridge. The vessel lay about 200 feet from the bridge. I was on board the vessel when I saw the Lancers run down towards the quay. Before that there were a good many on the quay; I can't say how many. They were doing nothing as I saw. I saw no stones thrown by them nor in their hands. They (the soldiers) were galloping down the quay, with their lances drawn. I saw the soldiers run down the quay, and the people ran for their lives on board my vessel. The vessel was chock full on the deck. I did not see the soldiers use their lances on the quay. I did not see the people doing anything to the soldiers. I did not see the deceased on that day on the quay until I saw him falling. The deceased was farther away from the bridge than my vessel about 10 yards. I saw nothing done to the deceased O'Brien by anybody. I saw a horseman near him; I would not know either the man or his horse again. I did not see the horseman do anything to the deceased man. The first I saw of the deceased on that day was seeing him fall forward. There was a horseman near him when he fell, and he had the lance in his hand. The Lancer was near enough to strike him, but the deceased was down. When the deceased O'Brien was in the act of falling the Lancer was near enough to strike him. I saw more than five Lancers on the quay besides this Lancer I speak of. When I got my vessel full of people, I slacked the chain to let the vessel out, so that the Lancers would not get alongside to injure any person on board. The Lancers were using their lances in their hands, having them ready for order. I did not see the lances pointed at the people. After O'Brien fell I can't say where the Lancer went to; I was occupied in taking a man out of the water who had jumped over the quay to avoid being struck by a Lancer. I took the man out of the water, and I called out, "Is there no man to pick the deceased O'Brien up?" I could see no Lancers on the quay then. I was the first to take up the deceased O'Brien, and I was assisted by John Malay; I did not see the Lancer return while Malay and I had the deceased; we brought him into the Linney. I can't say whether Malay took deceased up before me; I did not see him. About seven minutes elapsed after O'Brien fell until I picked him up. I saw no Lancers when I came out on the quay about the root market. I remained with O'Brien until the priest and doctor came; he was unable to speak. I saw no stones thrown before O'Brien fell; they could be thrown without my seeing them.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—Three vessels lay between Captain Kiely's house and the quay; mine was the centre vessel. There were a great many people besides the crews in these three vessels. For about half an hour before O'Brien was hurt, saw a crowd of people between the bridge and my vessel; I cannot say whether there were 500 there. There were no persons on board the vessels until the Lancers gave rapid way to their horses, and then they ran for their lives on board the vessels. I saw no stones with any of the people on board the vessels, nor sticks either. I saw O'Brien fall before I knew the man was in the water; and when I saw him fall I saw no person injure him or trample on him. I was looking at O'Brien after he fell for about two minutes, when I heard of the man being in the water; during those two minutes nobody trampled on him or injured him. O'Brien fell on his left temple. After I took the man out of the water, O'Brien's position was altered by about one foot, and I saw the marks on the mud as if he had been dragged; I did not observe this until I stood over him; he was lying by himself. I called out to heave in the chain to get the boat nearer the quay, which was done, and I got up to the man. Heaving in the chain took only two or three minutes; during this time no person came to the assistance of the deceased. I raised the deceased, and called out for assistance, and in a minute Malay came up; Malay and I placed the deceased in a place of shelter, and nobody interfered with us while we were doing so. During the time the man was in the water the deceased might have been picked up by somebody.

THE DEPOSITION of Robert R. Kennedy, at Ballinamultina, a Magistrate of the County, who, being first duly sworn, deposed and says:—

I was in Dungarvan on Saturday, the 29th day of December last, the day of the polling. About two o'clock, or between one and two, I was in the house of my friend, Mr. Dwyer. The house is nearer to the bridge than the Court-house, and on the opposite side from the Court-house, and looks down on the bridge and a portion of the quay. I was at one of the front windows of the house. I saw a number of men walking over the bridge, escorted by troops. There were troops on each side and preceding them, and some Lancers in the rear. The whole of the voters passed up, and I lost sight of them. While the voters and troops passed in my view, they were not molested. My attention was fixed on them while they were passing. After the voters and escort had passed, I saw the rear-guard turn back and divide into two parties. No stone or missile had been thrown at the cavalry before the cavalry charged on the people. I saw one portion of the party charge the people down the quay, as far as the Court-house would admit of my seeing. The horses were galloping. The lances were levelled. My notice was directed to one lad trying to ascend the parapet wall between the bridge and the quay; he might have been 12 or he might have been 14. He reached the parapet of the bridge, but he fell down again. He made an effort to re-ascend the parapet, and while doing so, I saw him pierced with the point end of the lance. When the people had been charged, I saw one Lancer follow the people inside the railing, near the new building or bank, and use the lance, but which end I cannot swear he used. Between five and 15 Lancers I saw charging down the quay. I could see from 50 to 80 yards down the quay. About five to eight minutes elapsed from the time I saw the Lancers charge until they re-appeared. I heard of one man mortally wounded, and several others wounded.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—While I sat in Mr. Dwyer's room, I saw a number of people, about 150, or from that to 200, congregated upon the quay and in the vicinity of the bridge. As far as I could see down the quay, there were not a dozen people. When I went into Dwyer's, the voters had not passed, nor did I know they were to pass. I went into Mr. Dwyer's, having taken no steps to disperse the people, as I did not consider it necessary, as the people were most orderly. They were no mob, because they were not riotous; I don't believe they did become a mob or riotous. While in Dwyer's house I had an opportunity of seeing 50 yards down the quay, and right and left of the bridge, and during that time no stone or missile was thrown at the cavalry until the cavalry charged down the quay. I do not know who the child was I saw pierced by the lance, and never inquired since; I cannot swear whether the boy was pierced or not, but I saw the lancer use as much physical force as he could. I did not leave the house when I saw this. My conviction is, that if the High Sheriff of the county had gone into the crowd during the charge, he would have been pierced by the military, as well as the other parties, and if I had gone out I would have shared the same fate; I was not afraid to go out; I believe the soldiers were under such excitement, that I would have had no influence with them. During the day, as far as my observation went, they were a well conducted crowd. The Lancer pursued the boy as far as the parapet. I saw the boy endeavour to ascend the parapet, and on his making a second attempt, the Lancer thrust the lance point at his back. The whole thing was the work of a second. I did not notice any other Lancer there. I cannot tell whether any other person saw this or not. The boy was about 50 yards from me when I saw the occurrence. The Lancers I saw charge the people at the Shandon side were about 50 yards from me. I saw some of the people attempt to ascend the railing at the western side, near the bank, to escape the Lancers. The Lancers were chasing them up to the railings. I can swear to four or five, but can't say how many more. It was the outside of the railings they were attempting to ascend. I will not swear that the Lancers did then attempt to use the lance, but will swear that the one who went inside the railing did use it. I don't believe that I gave distance as my reason for not being able to see which end of the lance was used; I can't say which end of the lance was used, in consequence of the obstruction caused by the people on the railing. At a meeting of the magistrates, some days before the election, it was arranged amongst them that they would take no part in the affairs of the election, unless officially called on. There were four resident magistrates in charge of the town on that day. The window in Mr. Dwyer's house was open.

THE DEPOSITION of Alice Crawley, of Dungarvan, a Servant Girl, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I was a servant to the late Captain Kiely. I was at one of the windows of his house on Saturday the 29th of December last. I saw the Lancers coming down the bridge from the quay, towards Captain Kiely's house; they were galloping as hard as ever they could, they had their lances in their hands. I could see up to the arch of the bridge, and to where the "Johanna" and the yacht were lying. I saw people on the quay running everywhere, when they saw the Lancers coming down on them; they were flying away from them. I saw them jumping into the vessels. I saw no persons resist or attack the Lancers on the quay. I saw no stones thrown. I did not know William O'Brien who lost his life. I saw a man on the quay opposite the entrance to the root market; he was doing nothing at all; I saw a Lancer approach him. The Lancers were running down the quay in great speed, and this man made a charge at the man who was standing. The Lancer had a lance in his hand; he carried it up straight in his hand. When the Lancer came up to the man, the horse was between me and the man. The Lancer turned the horse and danced on the man's feet, but not on his body. The Lancer went down the quay and turned back, and went into the

Liuney,

Linney, where the people went away from them. There were many people in the Linney at the time. He was darting at them with the lance, and they were trying to get away from him. At this time there was only one Lancer there. The people were throwing no stones at him, only trying to escape him as well as they could. The man was lying on the quay at this time. I saw other Lancers on the quay and coming down after the man was knocked down. I would not know the Lancer that knocked down the man; his horse was black or brown. Captain Kiely's house is about 20 yards from this place. I saw one of the Lancers make a dart of his lance at the body on the ground; it did not reach him. The Lancer went in full speed down the quay farther. There were no people on the quay at this time, as far as I could see, except those in the vessels. There were four persons including Captain Kiely, about Captain Kiely's door; Captain Kiely was standing on the steps, and there were two men between him and the railing, and a woman in the gateway. There were no stones thrown by those people on the quay or by those at Captain Kiely's door at the soldiers. I saw the Lancer that went into the Linney come out of it and ride as fast as he could; he turned the horse up at the flag of Captain Kiely's door, and made a dart at his neck; the dart did not avail on his neck. He then turned and backed the horse, and struck Captain Kiely with the lance under the breast. He turned and made a dart at the woman who was standing in the gateway of Captain Kiely's; the gateway is immediately alongside the door; he did not strike the woman, the thrust missed her; the woman remained where she was until the Lancer went away; the wicket of Captain Kiely's gate was open, and she went inside it. I saw Lancers go down the quay, but I could not see any farther. I saw nothing done to any other person before that, except what I told.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—I was at Mrs. Whelan's at Abbeyside, and Mr. Flynn, one of the jurors, was talking to Mrs. Whelan about the Lancers and asking about them. He asked her did she know anything about the Lancer, and was it there the Lancer lodged that did the deed, meaning the Lancer that killed Captain Kiely. I heard Mrs. Whelan say that she gave 40 of them a penny loaf each and some drink, but I can't say how much she said. Mr. Flynn said they were trying to go as far they could to find out about the Lancers, and I said it was poor satisfaction for the woman and her seven children, that lost her husband; Mr. Flynn said to me, what did I know about it. Mrs. Whelan said that I was Captain Kiely's nurse, and that I was looking out of the window. I said I was looking out of the window, and Mr. Flynn said I would be able to give great intelligence about it; there was nothing else. The conversation occurred on the Tuesday evening after Captain Kiely was killed. I was looking out of the window for half-an-hour before the Lancers came down, and I saw some hundreds of people between the bridge and Captain Curran's yard, and down as far as the Linney. These were great shouting when the voters were coming up to the bridge. I saw no stones thrown. When the people came down before the Lancers, they ran into the Linney and it was full. I saw the deceased O'Brien standing for a few minutes where he was knocked down, before he was knocked down, and close to the Linney, and outside it. I cannot tell how many Lancers passed before O'Brien was struck. The Lancer who struck him, was galloping with full force down the quay, and he made no halt. I can't say whether he was thrown down with horse or lance. He backed the horse round and danced on the man's feet. I am quite sure O'Brien was not walking on the quay, either on it or across it at the time he was knocked down. I saw another Lancer come along and make a dart of his lance at O'Brien, and it did not reach him. I saw nothing else happen to him until he was taken up. I saw O'Brien taken up by one person, and while he had a hold of him, I left the window. While I was looking at O'Brien, Captain Kiely's clerk came up to the next room, and said the master was killed. Up to this time I had not stirred, and kept looking at O'Brien, the deceased. A few minutes elapsed from the time I saw O'Brien on the ground, and my seeing Captain Kiely struck with the lance; when I saw Captain Kiely struck, I said, O merciful Jesus, the master is killed! and I still stopped looking out of the window, until I saw the prod made at the girl. The Lancer went down the quay, and I could not see him further than a yard. After I lost sight of the Lancer, Captain Kiely's son went out and was running after the Lancer, and I bawled out of the window to one of the men on the quay to run after young Kiely, for fear the Lancer might trample on him. I was looking at the Linney while the Lancer was in there, and I saw no stone thrown. When Captain Kiely was struck, he turned round and went in; I did not know Captain Kiely was killed until the clerk came up. Only a second elapsed from the time Captain Kiely was stabbed, until he made the blow at the woman.

THE DEPOSITION of John Murray, of Augustin-street, Dungarvan, a Mariner, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS standing close to Captain Kiely's house, and close to Captain Kiely, on Saturday the 29th of December last. The first thing I saw was a rush of people from Captain Kiely's gate to a hooker belonging to me that had no ballast, on board of which a great many of them got. I ran to prevent them from upsetting the boat, never thinking the Lancers would come down there. They saw the Lancers coming down, and I know it was from them they ran. When I heard the tramp of the Lancers after me I got on board to protect myself from the men and horses; when I got on board, the horses went fast down the quay. There were only two persons on the quay from that down; those two were 50 yards, more or less, from my hooker, and farther from the bridge; I was about 200 yards from the bridge; these two were running down before the horses. I saw a lancer strike one of the two men I saw with the lance about the head or shoulders, but I can't say which end of the lance he used. The man fell under a cart which was standing up against Mr. Purser's wall. The other man ran towards the quay, and while running I saw another Lancer in chase of him. I saw him make a thrust at him, and then I saw a hat on the point of the lance; the Lancer came back with the hat on the point of the lance, and rode up towards the bridge. I saw one of the Lancers chase up Galway's-lane and saw nobody there. I could not see up the lane. I saw another go up Mrs. Ahearn's lane in full speed, but I could not see the lane. I saw no stones thrown before these men went up the lane, or any attack made on them. I saw nothing else until the horses came back, when I saw William O'Brien stretched outside the Linney. The Linney was chockful from end to end, chiefly women. I saw Lancers go into the root market; I saw them darting at the men and women as they were there, with the butt end of the lance. I can't say whether it was two or three Lancers I saw there. I did not see either of the two men I saw on the quay assail the Lancers in any form. I did not see any stones thrown from my hooker at the Lancers.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—My hooker was opposite Captain Kiely's house; there were about three vessels and several hookers farther on down the quay. The people who ran from Captain Kiely's to my hooker were sitting outside the gate, and some standing. I am sure there were 20 there, but will not say there were not 60; but the deck of my hooker was chockfull. The people on board were on the side of the hooker next the quay, so that the Lancers could not see them; I did not see the Lancers until they had passed me. The Lancers who had gone down the quay returned back as far as the Linney. I never saw O'Brien on the quay until the Lancers returned as far as my boat; after they passed my boat, between me and the bridge, it was then I saw the deceased, O'Brien, stretched on his face and eyes. I can't say who threw the stone from my hooker; I swore if I knew who did it I would throw him overboard. The soldiers had passed away when this was done. The stone was thrown on the quay. The soldiers had passed the hooker about the length of the Court House at the time; the stone was not thrown in the direction of the soldiers. Because I considered the person who threw the stone did wrong was the reason I threatened to throw him overboard. My reason for checking them was because if they saw the stone thrown they would turn back and stab some of us. To my knowledge there was no stone on board my boat before the crowd went on board from Captain Kiely's. It must have been by one of the men who came from Captain Kiely's gate that the stone was thrown when the soldiers passed off the quay. I saw the people come on shore from the "Johanna" and the yacht. Immediately on the soldiers going, the people went ashore. I did not see any person do anything to O'Brien while he lay on the ground; neither did I see the horseman who stood alongside of him do anything. I saw some man come up and give him a cant and lay him down again, and the man who did so walked into the Linney away from him. During that time nobody else came up or did anything to O'Brien or the man. I can't say whether stones might have been thrown from the Linney before I saw O'Brien and before I saw the Linney; they may have been without my seeing them. While the soldiers were passing down between me and the sea, I saw no stones thrown at them from the vessel or any other place; if they were I did not see them. The stone I saw thrown was a powdered paving stone, about the size of an ink bottle.

THE DEPOSITION of Patrick Bowdren, of Blackpool, Dungarvan, Master Mariner, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS on the quay of Dungarvan on Saturday, the 29th of December last, when Captain Kiely and O'Brien lost their lives; I was at Captain Kiely's gate; there were in or about 10 with me; they were doing nothing, only looking on; I saw the Lancers charge down the quay; I did not see O'Brien on the quay; when I found Captain Kiely's gate was closed, I ran for my life on board Captain Murray's hooker, and got on board; I saw the soldiers go as far as Captain Curran's gate before they turned back; this was the gate of the eastern yard; I saw no people on the quay; neither did I see the Lancers do anything; I saw vessels and hookers to the east end of the quay; I saw no people on board those vessels; from three to five Lancers went down past Murray's hooker, and I saw them coming back; I saw a man's hat and handkerchief on the point of the lance; the lance was pierced through the hat and handkerchief; as the Lancers were passing Murray's hooker, one of them stopped and spoke to the people in the hooker, saying,—“Ye damned sons of bitches, we'll give it to ye.” He then passed on. I was in the act of taking off my coat and shoes for the purpose of jumping overboard, fearing they may come to the hooker and dart at us. The Lancers then went up in the direction of the root market, or Linney. I saw nothing take place at Captain Kiely's door. I came out of the hooker in about five minutes after the Lancers went away. Captain Kiely was stabbed in the interval between my leaving him and my coming out of the hooker. The Lancers went inside the wall of the root market. There are three entrances to the market. I saw two of the horses go through the east entrance. I can't tell where the other Lancers went to; they went out of my sight. I did not see the Lancers do anything in the root market. When I looked I saw a man on his face and eyes, about 10 feet from the north-east entrance of the market; I saw no more of the man. As soon as I got a chance of the Lancers I went home. None of the people about Captain Kiely's door assaulted the Lancers in any way, neither by shouting or stone-throwing. I did not see a stone thrown out of the hooker. I did not see any person assail the Lancers while they were on the quay. I looked at the root market before the soldiers entered it, and I saw no stones thrown from it.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—I was on board the hooker about three minutes before I saw Captain Murray. At the time I was going to jump overboard, Captain Murray was on board. I swear there were not 20 at Kiely's gate. I can't tell whether persons came on board from other places besides Kiely's place. There were about 20 on board, and there might have been more; some of them were women; I saw two women, but there might have been more. I saw a great many people running down from the direction of the bridge towards Murray's hooker and Kiely's store. The Lancers were charging the people. I will not swear that there were not 300 there, but I do swear there were not 500 there. Some of these people got on board the “Johanna,” the yacht, and the hooker, and I saw some go into the Linney. I saw people scattered from Kiely's to the bridge; some jumping on board and some getting into the root market. They were jumping everywhere to save their lives. I don't know whether some of the people made for Kiely's hall door. The gate was not open, but the door was. The Lancers were between me and O'Brien. At the first time I saw him down, it was between the open between the Lancers I saw him. I saw stones thrown on that day from about the bridge. I saw one stone in the air as the Lancers were charging near the iron railing up near the bridge. I was standing at the time opposite Kiely's gate on the quay. That was the only stone I saw thrown on that day. There was no shouting at the time the stone was thrown. The stone might have struck the soldiers, or it might have missed them. I saw nothing else thrown on that day. I saw no stones in the hands of any persons, and I swear I had not one myself.

THE DEPOSITION of Richard Curran, of Abbeyside, Dungarvan, a Master Mariner, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS at the Court-house railings, at the angle opposite Mr. Dwyer's house on the 29th of December last. I had a full view of the bridge. I saw the escort coming across with voters; Major Wombell and Mr. Maguire were with them. There were hundreds of people about the bridge. The voters and escort came down to the Court-house, which was the polling-place. I did not see an assault made on the voters. At this side of the bridge, Major Wombell turned to the right, the Shandon side. The voters were coming on in the rear. The Major was in front. As the Major turned to the right, the voters were passing on. I did not then see any attack made on the voters, or any attempt made to take them from the soldiers. I had the voters in full view until they came down to the Court-house. I saw Major Wombell attack two men, and use his sword freely with them. They attempted to get through the railings, and had not space to go through them. I will not swear whether it was the edge, back, or flat of the sword he used. I saw three Lancers attempting to force the deal-yard gate, which they succeeded in doing. On their going in, they charged down the yard on the people. I saw a woman ridden over by one Lancer, opposite the new bank. I can't say whether stones were thrown or not where the woman was ridden over. Immediately before the woman was ridden over, I cannot say whether stones were thrown or not from the crowd. I was not looking at the place before she was ridden over. Immediately, near the railing, I saw a Lancer stand in his stirrups, and strike a man with all his might between his shoulders with the butt end of the lance. The man was about five yards from me. The man was close to the wall and doing nothing, and I did not see him assault the soldier in any way. I did not see any of the Lancers charge down the quay. I lost sight of Major Wombell after. The man was knocked down by the blow.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—I did not leave the enclosed space of the Court-house during the time what I saw occurred. I was not nearer to the bridge than the railings for half-an-hour before I saw the voters. To the best of my belief, there were about 400 or 500 there, but I will not swear there were not double that number. Up to the time the voters came in, the people I speak of were in the vicinity of the bridge. I don't know whether the Lancers and magistrates who brought in the voters were pelted or not. There was a large coach which might have prevented me from seeing it. I did not see a stone thrown by any individual on that day, neither did I see them in the air. I did not see a stone strike anybody. I swear I did not see anything done to the Lancers at all on that day. I saw in or about 28 police, and a sub-inspector with them, within about 50 or 60 yards of the place where what I have described occurred. The police were within about 10 or 12 yards of where the woman was knocked down. There was a line of military between the police and the woman. I was on the railings from four to five minutes, and all I have described occurred within that time.

THE DEPOSITION of Cornelius Redmond, of Waterford, Proprietor of the "Waterford News," who, being first duly Sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS standing inside the Court-house railings on Saturday, the 29th of December last, near the angle next the bridge, and near where Captain Curran stood. I saw the escort and voters at the other side of the bridge, coming over the bridge. There was a crowd collected in the open space before the bridge at each side of the road; the voters came on a single line of cars, and passed over the bridge, with a guard in front, a guard in the rear, and a guard at each side. When the voters came across the bridge, the crowd shouted; I think it was more a buzz than a shout; about 50 police were drawn up at the Court-house, at either side, and a larger number at the hotel; there were some infantry, also, at the Court-house; the police at the hotel were about 40 yards from the open space at the bridge; the voters and escort were not assaulted by anybody when they passed over the bridge; there was not the least attempt made to take away the voters from the escort; the voters passed on without stopping; the crowd was composed of men, women, and boys; as soon as the Lancers came over the bridge, a portion of them turned to the right, and a portion to the left; I then lost sight of the Lancers and people at the Shandon side, and my attention was entirely directed to the quay side; the crowd on the quay side closed in on the road two or three feet, leaving ample passage for the voters; the closing in did not press on the escort in any way. The Lancers turned towards the people, and began to plunge with their horses, leaning forward on their horses and holding their lances; the lances were directed against the people on the quay side; I did not see the Lancers come into collision with any of the people at that time; up to that time there had not been a stone thrown; in a couple of minutes the Lancers rushed down the quay; the people fled from them, and the Lancers rushed forward with their lances in their hands, as if going into battle, and I saw no more of them; I heard cries of women, and cries of two people being killed, from the direction where the Lancers went; I saw nothing except plunging and charging done by the Lancers. The character of the crowd up to the plunging of the horses was orderly and quiet.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—I will not swear that the voters did not walk across the bridge; I was speaking to Mr. Flynn, one of the jurors, for two or three minutes on this morning about what occurred at Mrs. Whelan's, at Abbeyside; I did not speak to him about the evidence I am to give; I was speaking to a clergyman about the distance, but I am unable to say whether Mr. Flynn was there or not; I think he was not; for 15 minutes before the voters came in, there were not more than half a dozen people on the quay, and in or about 20 at the bridge; there were stones thrown in the neighbourhood of the bridge, but I can't say by whom; I saw three or four stones in the air; this was after the Lancers charged charged the people; I saw none before; I saw no person struck; I saw no stones thrown, except at the bridge; I was in the square in the morning, but did not see the Lancers charge there.

THE DEPOSITION of Henry Anthony, of Dungarvan, Surgeon, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS called between one and two o'clock on Saturday, the 29th of December last, to see the deceased, William O'Brien, who was in the Linney, at the Root Market, on the quay. He was living, but insensible. I made no examination at the time of him, but my opinion was, that he was suffering from concussion of the brain; I saw him again on the same night at the hospital where I had him removed; he was insensible when I saw him the second time; I made an external examination of his head on the same night; I discovered a circumscribed swelling on the left side of the head over the occipital bone, on pressing that part he winced as if he felt; there must have been some external violence used to cause the appearance the head presented; there must have been a good deal of external force to produce the concussion; the injury was such as might have been produced with the butt end of a lance, or some such round instrument; there was a slight abrasion over one of the eye-brows; it might be caused by falling on the ground. I did not see sufficient external appearances to enable me to come to the conclusion that concussion may not have been caused in any other way. I believe the death of the deceased O'Brien was caused by a blow on his head. I dressed four or five wounds myself on this day, such wounds as might be produced by lances; with the exception of one, they were all old people; the wounds were produced by some sharp instrument piercing the hat and the scalp. A man standing inside my door showed me a wound on his neck; it was a contusion. Two had their hats pierced, and one had a scalp wound about two inches and a half from the top of his head. When next I saw the deceased he was dead and in the dead-house.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—The appearance on the head of the deceased might be the only appearance that would be presented if a Lancer rode at full speed at him and struck him with the butt-end of the lance. I discovered no fracture of the skull by external examination; it may have been fractured; there may have been a very large fracture of the internal table of the skull without any external fracture without my being able to discover it. A man falling while running may get concussion which would be momentary, but it would not continue up to death; it may continue for hours, but not for a day or two. Dr. Hunt continued to attend the deceased after I left him. I can't say whether such an instrument as I see represented on paper would produce such a wound. Dr. Hunt and I did not consider it necessary to make a post-mortem examination of the body. The size of the swelling I saw on the head of the deceased on Saturday night was about two inches and a half by two, and it disappeared when I saw him dead.

THE DEPOSITION of Michael Connory, of Spring, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I AM a caretaker of Miss Carberry's. I was coming in to Dungarvan on Saturday, the 29th of December last. It was market day. I was along with the voters and Lancers on the road; I overtook them. The voters were on cars. There were some Lancers before them and some behind, and some at the sides. I was walking on the footpath. A Lancer rode up on the footpath; it was in or about a quarter of a mile from the town. I went out on the road from him and attempted to go from him; I went across to the other side of the road to get out of their way; I was struck by one of the Lancers with the butt of the lance. This was about eight or nine o'clock in the morning. I was struck in the forehead, over the left eye, and cut. I was knocked down by the blow. When I got up, I went to the big wall on the side of the road, and I was bleeding; I pretended I was killed. I lay down there; two or three horses were dancing on the opposite side, and one of the Lancers came over and gave me a stroke of the lance in the eyebrow. The eyebrow was cut, and the coat also. When they came the second time and saw me bleeding, they went away from me. I said or did nothing to provoke that assault. I can't say whether there were officers or not with them.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—Both cuts were dressed by Dr. McGrath. I went on my knees or elbows and said I was killed. When the people told me the Lancers were gone, I got up and walked into town, and got myself dressed. I cleaned my coat before I went in. I swear I did not get the second cut by throwing myself down. I saw no stones thrown. I heard women shouting at the Lancers and voters, "Down with the Tory." It was between the place where I was struck and the town that I heard the women use those expressions I have mentioned.

THE DEPOSITION of John M. Martin, of Dungarvan, a Carpenter, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I was working at the new bank on Saturday, the 29th of December last. I was there when the voters were coming in; I was about one o'clock, to the best of my belief. There were a great many people about the bridge at both sides, and in the vicinity of it, as the Lancers and voters came in; about 500, as near as I could say. When the voters and escort were coming to the bridge, an advance guard of the Lancers rode out, and went to drive the people back; the Lancers rode their horses at a gallop against the people, and struck at them with their lances, but with which end I cannot say. Up to the time the Lancers rode against the people I saw no stones thrown; the people were not disorderly; they were apparently tranquil. To the best of my opinion, there was room for the Lancers to pass between the people. After the Lancers had pushed the people on before them, I saw stones thrown, particularly from Mahony's timber-yard and about the bridge. The people got up on the window of the ground floor in the house in which I was working. Before I left it the window was closed up by a Lancer riding up against the people there. There were four women there; the Lancer rode his horse up close to them. I went up stairs then, and I saw the Lancers riding about furiously from place to place. I saw stones thrown from Mahony's yard; there were a good many thrown; they were thrown thinly for about a minute. I saw about 40 police go into Mahony's yard; in about a minute they ran the people into the slob or strand, and cleared out the yard. I saw a boy on the parapet of the bridge struck or poked in the breast by one of the Lancers; I can't say which end of the lance was used. I saw the people running down the quay, and the Lancers running down after them; they were galloping furiously; the people were apparently running away from them. I did not see any stones thrown on the quay. About 18 Lancers, or perhaps more, went down the quay; I could see down the quay as far as the "Johanna."

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—There were people at this end of the bridge for half an hour or 20 minutes before the Lancers came up, and as the Lancers appeared at Abbeyside they came more thickly to the amount of 400 or 500; there were about 50 or 60 inside the timber-yard. To the best of my belief, there were no stones outside the railing on that day. To the best of my belief there were about 200 people; some about the bridge and some scattered outside the railing; there was about an equal number at the quay side of the bridge. There was so much confusion I did not see the voters at all. When the Lancers got to this side of the bridge they opened in the centre, and came to each side of the bridge and drove the people back; they rode at them, struck them, and pushed them back forcibly; the movement appeared to me to clear the people before them, and leave no person there. No stones were thrown until the Lancers forced the people down the railings, and the stones began to go in about a minute or half a minute after. I saw the stones flying without seeing anybody stoop for them; the stones came from the foot of the bridge (the Shandon side) and Mahony's yard, and outside the railings on the Shandon side. I suppose there were about 100 stones; the stones were chiefly the size of those placed on the road, and some much larger; the stones ceased to a great extent, but not altogether, by the Lancers riding and dispersing the people. Up to the time the gate was broken, the people were flinging stones at the Lancers from inside the railing; the largest stone I saw thrown was about three times the size of an ordinary powdered paving. Up to the time I went upstairs the Lancers had not gone down the quay. I can't tell, up to the time I went upstairs, whether any stones were flung at the Lancers or not at the quay side; I was only upstairs about a minute before the Lancers at that side turned to go down the quay. About 150 faced down the quay before the Lancers, or from that to 200. I cannot say that the stone throwing had ceased when the Lancers went down the quay; there might be one or two going, but for all I could see it had ceased. The crowd had scattered, and the stone throwing ceased, before the soldiers charged down the quay. The police had cleared out most of the people out of the yard before the Lancers got in; the stone throwing ceased almost immediately as the police got in; about 20 were thrown as the police got in, as if it were the last volley; this I use as a figurative expression.

John M. Martin.

THE DEPOSITION of Ambrose Hunt, of Dungarvan, Surgeon, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I AM the poor-house doctor. I saw the deceased, Wm. O'Brien, for the first time on Sunday, the 30th of December last, at the poor-house hospital; he was then insensible, and died in about five or six hours after. I only saw him once. I believe he was labouring under concussion of the brain, and I believe that was the cause of his death. I can't say how the concussion was caused. I saw no marks or wounds on him on examining him.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—Sunday morning, before 12, I first saw the deceased, O'Brien. It would be utterly impossible that the deceased could have a wound two and a half inches by two, got at two o'clock the day before, and all traces to have disappeared by 12 the next day. I am of opinion that the butt end of the lance produced, if used by a Lancer riding at full speed, and driven against the occipital bone, would produce a fracture of a very serious character; it would depend on the angle on which it struck. It is possible a wound of two and a half inches by two might be produced by a Lancer going at full speed, and striking with the butt end at an angle on the occipital bone, but I believe that a wound produced in that way would not be sufficient to produce concussion of the brain; that is, I mean struck at so great an angle. It is possible there might have been such a contusion as would produce concussion and cause death, and yet the contusion would disappear in a few hours. Such a contusion on the occipital bone would be more likely to be produced by a direct blow than by a blow given at an angle; the effect of the blow would depend much on whether the man wore a hat or not, and on the formation of the head, and the angle at which it struck; if struck with a hat on at a very great angle, it would be more likely to glance off without doing any harm at all. It is not likely that a man falling forward to the ground violently while running would receive concussion, but it is quite possible. If I heard a witness describe the deceased as having attempted to run across the quay at two o'clock on Saturday, and falling forward suddenly, and never stirring afterwards, or recovering sensibility, and that I found him in the same state on Sunday morning at twelve o'clock labouring under concussion of the brain, I would say that concussion was caused by the fall. It would be possible for the concussion so caused to continue all that time, and up to the time of his death. I examined the external surface of the body after death, and found no wound or contusion. I will not swear that the man's skull was not fractured at the back of the head. It is quite possible a man might receive concussion without receiving a blow or external violence on the head. If I heard from a faithworthy witness that the man, whilst standing in health, received a blow on the head with a lance from a Lancer going at full speed, and which threw him down insensible, and that a competent medical man on the same evening found a contusion on the part of the head struck, on which, being pressed, the man winced, and that the man died of concussion of the brain, I would be of opinion that the man died from the concussion caused by the blow. Concussion might be caused by a man falling violently on his buttocks, the shock being communicated to the brain by the spine. I agreed with Dr. Anthony as to the immediate cause of death—concussion of the brain. I believe what Dr. Anthony stated about a tumour being on the back of his head on Saturday night to be quite true, and my not finding one there on Sunday morning did not induce me to think what he stated was not true. If Dr. Anthony stated it was the blow of a lance on the back of the head produced concussion, I must disagree with him, for I am not at all satisfied it was that produced it. If I wanted to produce concussion of the brain on a subject, without producing injury on the scalp, the butt end of a lance is the last instrument I would choose for that purpose. I believe Dr. Anthony to be quite competent to give an opinion as to the cause of the death of the deceased.

THE DEPOSITION of John Butler Green, Esq., a resident Magistrate of the County of Monaghan, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS on duty in Dungarvan at the late election for the county of Waterford. I was on duty on the day of polling, the 29th December last. I was required to escort voters into town, and I went with troops for that purpose on two occasions on the 29th; I went for the first time about a few minutes before nine o'clock; I returned to town with voters about half-past 10. I went out the first time to the residence of Mr. Roberts; Coolnagour, as well as I recollect, is the name of the place. Lord Hastings and I went out together. I brought in about 100 voters at that time. When we came to the square, Major Wombell and I were riding together in front, and as we came there I saw stones flying in the rear. The stones came from the crowd and towards the troops. There were a great many stones; I saw no other weapon or missile used. I saw people with sticks in their hands, but I did not see them using them. I did not see anybody struck on that occasion. I can't say who was struck or who was not struck. The stone throwing continued while I was going from the square to the yard near the hotel, with voters, and on returning to the square there was some excitement and some stone-throwing going on; I remained there for 10 or 15 minutes, and got the troops to be going round and round, and this stopped the stone throwing, and the square became quiet. The troops remained on the square while I was at the livery yard with the voters. I can't say that I heard any offensive expressions used by the people to the Lancers. I heard the ordinary expressions used at elections. I went out the second time about half-past 12, with Lancers, commanded by Major Wombell, to meet other Lancers who were out before us, and who were coming in with voters. We met those Lancers about a mile and a half outside the town, and returned with them; Captain Lequesne was with them. We went out over the bridge. When we met the voters, at about half a mile at the other side of the bridge, they were taken off cars; Mr. Hatchell was escorting the voters in with the troops. The voters were placed in a mass between half a troop of cavalry, half a troop in front, and half a troop in rear. When we came a little nearer to the bridge, near some cottages, we met a company of infantry there, with Major Lennon and Captain Coote. This company was divided and placed at each side of the voters. When this was done they moved on. I went with Major Wombell in front; his troop was not put in use to bring round the men. The voters came in and crossed the bridge. When we came to the bridge, or near it, we observed from the other side a crowd at the town side on each wing of the bridge. Major Wombell and I, then on the bridge, divided his troop towards each of those wings, in front of this crowd. There were crowds at each side. This was my direction to Major Wombell, to divide the troops at each side to keep back the crowd, and allow the voters to pass in. The effect was to keep back the crowd. The crowd was not forced back, in my opinion, more than I thought necessary, and more than I intended. I was in command and authority over those Lancers at that point. The voters that had been surrounded with the infantry and cavalry began to pass in. At the moment stones began to fly from both wings of the bridge, a great number; I have no doubt there were at least 1,000 people about the wings of the bridge; they were composed of men, boys, and women; there might have been children there without my seeing them. The stones were flung in the direction of the troops and voters; they came from both sides; I can't say whether any came from inside the railings; they came from that side. I saw two persons arrested, and a scuffle going on inside the railings; the entire thing did not last more than ten minutes, if so long; I mean the stone-throwing and scuffle. The troops got no further orders from myself, or ever heard; the only directions I gave the troops were when Major Wombell and I were placing them to keep the crowd back, and keep the road clear for the voters; what occurred after was instantaneous. Major Wombell when placing the men said, "Now, men, keep steady, and don't skedaddle." One of the Lancers said, "Sure, Major, we can't stand to be battered with stones as we were before; flesh and blood can't bear it." The Major replied, "We must all bear it; we must be steady." There was no stone-throwing going then; it commenced in a minute or two after; I can't say the number of stones flung, but there were hundreds; they were like hail; I think they were small broken stones, such as are put on roads; I saw a heap on the quay side, and the remains of it is there to-day. While the stone-throwing was going on, I saw the Lancers ride about, and the people ran down the quay from the quay end of the bridge, and the Lancers, about ten or a dozen, not more, at that time galloped after them. I then saw Major Wombell gallop down in the same direction after the Lancers. The Lancers did not wheel round and pursue the people until after they had been pelted with stones, as I have described. If any gentleman swore the Lancers charged down the quay before the stones were thrown, it would not be the fact. I did not leave the bridge until the entire thing was over. I saw the back of Major Wombell's hand cut at the moment. From the treatment the troops received on that day and the previous day, I consider they acted with wonderful forbearance and temper on the whole, so far as came under my observation. I consider I had full opportunity at each side of the bridge, and especially at the quayside, of seeing how the troops conducted themselves.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters.—I saw the Lancers riding about on the square, keeping back the people, but I think they did not use their lances. The people were pelting stones at at the time. I did not consider the lives of the Lancers in danger, except so far as being in the place where stones were thrown. I saw no person struck. I think there were 150 soldiers with the voters coming in over the bridge. Up to the time the troops arrived at this side of the bridge, where we divided the troops, there was no stone thrown. As we came to this end of the bridge, the people opened out to either side and offered no obstruction to our passing. I did not divide the troops for the purpose of making a passage, because there was a passage already, but for the purpose of preventing the people from rushing in and incommoding the voters. The reason I did so was because when I was bringing in the voters on that morning and on the previous evening, the rear guard and voters had been pelted. I came in with the troops between the crowd, and no stones were thrown for a minute or two. Major Wombell was about seven yards from me, and out of my earshot, because of the noise. I was struck in the side by a stone, as if a dropping stone, but I was not hurt, and I was not a bit afraid. The idea of being in danger did not enter into my consideration at the time; I did not think anything about it. At the time I saw the people running down the quay, and the soldiers riding after them, the stone throwing at the bridge had not ceased. I could see down the quay about 30 yards; the stone throwing at the quay side had not ceased as the soldiers rode down the quay after the people. At the time Major Wombell rode down the quay after the Lancers the stone throwing was still going on at the quay side. There was a cart under the Court-house wall, and there were some women and men in it, and a heap of stones from which some boys were pelting; a Lancer galloped over towards them, and I went and stopped him. I saw no injury on that occasion inflicted on any person. As a resident magistrate, I did not consider there was any necessity of ordering the use of deadly weapons in the whole of the transaction; I do not think anything occurred at that bridge that would justify me in ordering the troops to fire, or the Lancers to lower their lances and charge the people. In the whole election I saw nothing that would justify me to order the troops to fire, or the Lancers to charge the people. I saw pelting going on, and the troops badly used, but not sufficient to take such extreme measures. I decline to answer the question, whether there was anything done to the troops on that day in my presence that would justify them in using deadly weapons; that being a question of law that I, as a resident magistrate, think I am not bound to be able to give an answer to. I decline to say what state of things would justify the use of weapons. I don't think the soldiers were to submit quietly to be stoned as they were in that day; and, as far as they came under my observation, I did not see them do anything unjustifiable. I did not see the Lancers injure any person on the road coming in that day.

THE DEPOSITION of Samuel Edward Maguire, Esq., of Clonea, a Magistrate of the County, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I RECOLLECT the 29th of December last, the day of polling for the county of Waterford election. I came with the escort that brought the Comeragh and Clonea voters, about one o'clock; there were about 140 or 150 voters. We were about a mile from the town, and Major Wombell and Mr. Green came out with an additional force to escort us in. As I approached the bridge I observed a number of people upon it and at either side, and as the troops approached them they moved on in the direction of the town, and out of the way of the troops. The populace fell back at either side at this end of the bridge; this falling back was the result of the military clearing the way. Almost immediately upon the military clearing back the people, there was a volley of stones came from the Shandon side. I did not see stones from any other direction. The soldiers had reached the place between the heap of stones and the gate of the deal-yard before any stones were thrown; I did not see any stones thrown from the quay side; I can't say whether there were or not. I was to the rear of Mr. Green about 10 or 12 yards, and can't say whether there were any troops at either side. The Lancers did not assault the people in any way before the stones were flung; I think there were perhaps over 100; they were too thick to be pleasant; they were principally macadamised stones; I saw one huge stone; it required a perfect Hercules to have hurled such a stone. I think there were about 700 or 800 people about the bridge and inside the railings; about 50 or 60 of those were scattered about inside the railings. Stones were thrown from inside the railing; I saw the people picking them up; they seemed to be all engaged in throwing stones; the stone throwing was going on for about five or six minutes; the stones were thrown in the direction of the Lancers; the stone throwing was going on up to the time I left, and I rode along into town. It would not be true if anybody swore that the military charged the people before stones were thrown. Before I left that place I saw a Lancer make a prod with the butt end of his lance at a man; this was while the stone throwing was going on. The Lancers conducted themselves on that occasion with remarkable forbearance with reference to the usage they had got.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters.—I saw a few of the Lancers' horses prancing in front of the people at the Shandon side, clearing them back, and one horse slipped.

THE DEPOSITION of Patrick Daly, of Glencoskoran, a Labourer, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS in Dungarvan on Saturday the day of polling; I came in with voters from Sir Nugent's place; I left my house about two or three o'clock in the morning; I was in the square about nine; I saw the Lancers galloping about there; I was down on the quay between one and two; I was running down before the Lancers came on the quay; I saw a man throw a stone up in the direction of the bridge, but it would not go half the way to the bridge. The Lancers were coming down. He then, after throwing the stone, made his way a little before me, and the Lancer was winding his lance. I can't say whether it was the lance or horse that struck him, but he fell; I can't say whether he was struck by horse or lance, but I saw him fall. He fell close to the Linney, and outside the wall; he stopped there until the Lancers returned up; I saw Melay then take him; I walked home at that minute. After the man fell, I saw about two or three stones thrown out of the Linney; I saw no other stone thrown by the deceased, neither did I see any with him. While we were running from the Coal-yard to the Linney, was the time that elapsed between the throwing of the stone and the man falling; I saw no stones thrown from any other place except the Linney; they could be thrown unknown to me; the Linney was full up. I stopped at the Linney until two Lancers came up, and one of them said, "Every damned one of ye must come out of that;" his lance was pointed towards them at the time, but he was doing nothing with it. The two or three stones were flung at the Lancers.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters.—When the deceased man threw the stone he stood nearly opposite the gate of the Coal-yard, about the middle of the quay; he crossed inside the channel to within about five feet of the Coal-yard, and ran down by the wall.

THE DEPOSITION of Alexander Edward Stowell Heard, of Tulla, County Clare, Sub-Inspector of Constabulary, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS on duty at the recent election in Dungarvan, opposite the Court-house; I was there from about nine or ten until after two. As the military crossed the bridge, I saw the people who were in front of the Court-house run towards the bridge, and I went for about a minute to look for Sub-Inspector Channer; when I came back I saw the Lancers at this side of the bridge, and I saw stones thrown from inside the railings; I suppose at the military; I got into the inclosure near the railings through a broken rail with about 23 policemen; there were about 40 people inside; there may be more or less. I saw them throwing stones over the railing out on the road, in the direction of where the Lancers were; I did not see the Lancers doing anything up to this, except one I saw prodding at a man inside the railing, and I don't know which end of the lance he was using; the man was amongst those I saw throwing the stones. I proceeded to clear the place, and as the people got off into a meadow they threw stones back at us, as we were coming after them. While the Lancers were at this end of the bridge stones were flung at them in great numbers, but I can't say the number.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters.—The only place I saw stones thrown from was inside the railings; when the men got in one by one they cleared the place without injuring any one one or being injured themselves; I went to the only place where I saw any danger and cleared it. I did not see anything done at the quay side as my back was turned to it, and I was not looking in that direction.

THE DEPOSITION of Daniel Connors, a Sub-constable of Tulla, County Clare, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS in the escort in charge of voters on Saturday, the 29th of December last; as the escort came across the bridge, the first thing I saw, as I was partly on the bridge, was stones coming from inside the railings; they were thrown in the direction of the military, the police, and voters; at the time I saw the stones throwing the Lancers were opened at both side, clearing the people; I succeeded in getting on, and I kept looking in the direction the stones were coming from; they were coming so thick I was afraid of being struck; as I was coming down towards the Court-house I saw a stone thrown, and a Lancer raising his arm and stooping to avoid it; I can't tell whether it struck him or not; the stone came from the quay side; the stones I saw thrown first came from the Shandon side; according as I moved on, stones came from the left, or quay side, also; they were flying thick; we found no difficulty in coming on with the voters, but the voters were afraid of being struck by the populace; I heard them say there was no protection in the rear, where they were; I was able to keep my place well in the line of march.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters.—I got no provocation on that day to use my sword; when I saw the stones throwing I don't know what the foremost Lancers were doing; they were 50 yards in front, and I could not see what they were doing; I saw some of the Lancers clearing the people near the new building, and more going down the quay; I can't say how far they went; it was the left arm the Lancer raised to protect himself from the stone, and the Lancer was riding at the time from the direction of the bridge towards the Court-house.

I WAS one of the escort coming with voters over the bridge on the 29th of December last; as I came to this side of the bridge I saw stones thrown from inside the railings, at the Shandon side, in the direction of the military, police, and voters; when the voters saw the stones they quickened their pace, and I had a great difficulty in keeping my place; there were about 20 or 30 thrown while I was passing; while the stones were being thrown in the direction of the military and police, the military were doing nothing to the people.

THE DEPOSITION of John Melville Hatchell, Esq., of Ballinasloe, a Resident Magistrate, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS on duty in Dungarvon at the late election on the 29th of December last. I went with an escort over the bridge about 11 o'clock on that morning on the Stradbally-road, to escort in about 200 voters. We got back about half-past one. We were met by a troop of Lancers, commanded by Captain Duncane, Mr. Green, and Major Wombell. As the Lancers came up to assist me, I ordered the voters off the cars, and formed them up close to walk in. The cavalry were then formed up, half in front and half in rear. I was riding in rear of the voters, and in front of Captain Norridge's troop. As Major Wombell's troop, which was in front, reached about the centre of the bridge, I saw stones thrown. I was at that time within about 15 or 20 yards of the bridge, at the other side. Before the soldiers crossed the bridge, I saw stones in the air coming from the direction of the Shandon side. The next I saw was the troop of Lancers wheeling up at the end of the bridge, half to the left and half to the right. I can't say whether the stones continued from the time I saw them until the soldiers divided to either side of the bridge. I should say there were at that time about 600 or 700 people at the bridge. I saw a good many women there. I was close enough to see every thing done by the Lancers at the time they divided to the right and left. The Lancers did not molest the people when pulling up. I consider it was necessary they should pull up at that point, in the manner in which they did it. A few of the Lancers passed on with the voters, and those that remained behind were received with volleys of stones, particularly from the Shandon side. My horse was struck in several places, but not injured. The stones were very thick and in volleys, I mean down the Shandon side. I saw one Lancer's horse stumble. I saw some Lancers struck, and one struck twice in the back. I saw a shako knocked off. I never saw stones thrown so large as those thrown from inside the railings at the Shandon side. I rode close to the railings for my own protection, and to see the police get in. Some of the stones were so large they were lobbing them over the railing. I directed the police to get in and clear out the place. The police got in, and I saw three or four Lancers also get in and gallop round, and they cleared the place; I saw two men arrested. When the Lancers divided at the bridge, a portion of them went down the quay, and my attention was directed to the Shandon side. All the Lancers about the bridge, with the exception of the three or four in the yard, had their lances carried. Those that started to go down the quay were pelted before they started from the quay side. The stones from the quay side were nothing in comparison to those thrown from the Shandon side. For the moment that I saw the stones came pretty freely from the quay side. Some of the stones flung from the Shandon side were flung with sufficient force to reach the Lancers at the quay side. I observed some of the crowd at the quay side of the bridge running down the quay before the Lancers. The Lancers turned on those and drove them down the quay. From what I saw I think the Lancers acted with great forbearance.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters.—I did not see the lances that were lowered put into any person's body. The Shandon side was the side I considered where the most danger was, and I turned to that. I gave no orders to the Lancers to charge, but I did give directions to the constabulary to act at the Shandon side. I saw two men knocked down in front of the New Building, but I can't swear they were knocked down by the Lancers, but to the best of my belief they were. I did not mean to say that there was not danger at the quay side.

I saw Major Wombell on same day; he had contusion of right hand. On 1st January 1867 I saw Serjeant-Major Hannan on same day; had a cut on right hand. Farrier Serjeant Tillier on same day had a contusion over right eye. Private Richard Owen had a cut on left hand. Private Charles Barber had a contusion on right hand. Private John Garrier had a contusion on left elbow. Private Richard Hamerton had contusion of left wrist. Private James Hamerton had a contusion on right knee and on the abdomen.

THE DEPOSITION of John Cavendish Orred, Esq., a Captain in the 12th Lancers, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I BROUGHT in voters about 10 o'clock in the morning of Saturday the 29th December last, from a house at the right-hand corner of William-street, and at the square we were pelted with stones and glass bottles. There was a good number. I know for a fact that two of my men were struck on coming into the square. The troop serjeant-major was cut on the hand, and the farrier was cut over the right eye; it was about 10 o'clock, or a little after it. The expressions I heard used on the square were, "Down with the Tories," and other party cries. I went out the second time about half-past twelve and came back about half-past one; and on coming back, as I came about 10 yards from the bridge proper, and while still in the causeway at the abbey side, I saw a large crowd at the town side, and stones flying from them. The front troop was just over the head of the bridge as the stones were flying. I proceeded on over the bridge, and as I arrived over I saw a few of our men on the Shandon side putting the people back. Almost immediately those Lancers crossed the main street and came down the quay. They rode down as far as a store about 20 yards below Captain Kiely's. I saw stone-throwing at the bridge before the Lancers rode down the quay. When I got to the town end of the bridge, stones were flying in volleys from all sides. I got a blow of a stone on my shako which produced the indentation that is on it. The blow came from the quay side. As I rode down the quay on that occasion I saw there were Lancers before me there. When I left the bridge to go down the quay the stoning was going on at the quay side. There were about eight or ten Lancers down the quay before me. As I rode down the quay with my men they did nothing to the people; they had their lances carried. I saw people on the right close by the wall on the way towards the Linney, and on board the yacht and vessel lying behind her. I saw the root market full of people. I can't swear that the people were as far as Kiely's. I saw no man on the ground as I went down. There were no stones flying at my men down on the quay except at the bridge; when I say my men, I mean my troop only. I heard the assembly sounded, and they came back; it was not any of my troop sounded it. I was a little farther on than Captain Kiely's. When the assembly was sounded we formed up and trotted back to the root market. The people I have mentioned as being in the root market were told by some of the Lancers to get out of it, because they had stoned some of the Lancers going down; they did leave it. Some of my men got inside the enclosure before they left. After the people cleared out of the root market, we came up past the hotel and halted. The people in the root market said they had not stoned them. I saw a blue mark on the left wrist of one of my men on the quay; his name was Hamerton; he showed me the wound just in front of the root market. I recollect nothing else, except that the conduct of the crowd at the bridge was exceedingly violent. As far as I had an opportunity of judging, the conduct of my men was exceedingly forbearing.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters.—I don't know where the stone was thrown from that injured Hamerton; it was thrown between the bridge and the coal store. The man was close to me, and I saw no injury as I left the bridge. I saw the wound on the man's hand before I got to the Linney. I rode about fifty yards beyond Kiely's, and I was not molested on the quay, or any of my men. If a stone had been thrown at a Lancer, and the party ran away and was pursued by the Lancer, and knocked down by a blow of the lance, and the man never rose after, I don't consider the Lancer was justified in killing the man, but I consider human flesh and blood could not stand without retaliating in self-defence. If a man does retaliate he is not justified in using his lance. I had not got into the square when the bottle was thrown and the serjeant-major's hand was cut. A green flag was hanging from a door on the square, a corner house, and one of the men in front of me struck at the flag with his lance. The bottle was thrown from this house, and before the flag was struck at. Connery could not have been knocked down and struck twice without my having seen it. To my knowledge, none of my men were struck on the quay, and may have been struck without my knowledge. A Lancer is justified in using his lance when struck by pushing, but not by using either end. Major Wombwell rode down the quay before me, after the first 10 or 12 men. It was the last of these 10 or 12 men that were 12 or 14 yards from me. The men were scattered; I can't say what distance was between the first and last men. The major crossed the road from the Shandon side to go down the quay, and had no men with him. The following are the names of the men of my troop in Dungarvan on that day:—Serjeant-Major Hannan, Serjeant Sanders, Serjeant Aitcheson, Farrier Serjeant Tilier, Corporals Smith, Cresswell, Meredyth, Redshaw, Privates George Smith, Henry Smith, Sheldon, Cobley, Gainor, Hammerton, Hammerson, Spiller, Brookes, O'Malley, Seeates, Ashley, Owen, Gaunt, Moffatt, Campbell, Coster, Holland, Scarrett. After two o'clock my men got at the Devonshire Arms a small bottle of porter each. I was with them all day, from half-past seven in the morning till half-past five in the evening. They could not have got drink without my having seen it. Could not have a bottle in their haversacks without being able to see the bulk, or in their pockets either. They were sober in the morning when I inspected them, and also in the evening, at half-past five. They were quite sober when I gave them the drink at two.

THE DEPOSITION of John Charles Le Quesne, Esq., a Captain in the 12th Lancers, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS in command of a troop at the late election, on the 29th December last, at Dungarvan; I had my own troop; they were sober. I saw them first in the morning between half-past seven and eight; I inspected them myself. With the exception of five minutes, I was with them the entire day up to five or six o'clock in the evening; I went during those five minutes with a message from Major Wombwell to the officer commanding, Colonel Sayer. About a quarter to one the men were taken to an hotel at Abbeyside, and about 200 yards to the right; each man got a pot of porter, a piece of bread, and some cheese; they got this in my presence, and in Major Wombell's presence, and also in a serjeant-major's presence, and got no more. They were sober at half-past two o'clock, and at the close of their day's work. I was in the square about 10 o'clock in the morning, and I saw stones thrown, coming down the street and in the square, at the soldiers and voters; I did not see any of the men struck at that time. As I was on the centre of the bridge, coming across, I saw stones flung from each side of the bridge. When the Lancers got across the bridge they (a portion of a troop) separated to either side; I with the remainder, and followed by the voters, went on until I reached the cordon of infantry at the Court-house, and stopped at the Imperial stables. As the troops divided to either side, they were stoned from both sides.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters.—I saw two of my men, Serjeant-Major Harry Woolley and Private Browne, coming up from the quay when the recall was sounded. Serjeant-Major Harry Woolley is in Dungarvan, Private Browne is not. To my knowledge no arrest or inquiry was made in my regiment with respect to the transactions that occurred. I heard on that day that a man had been knocked over on the quay, and taken to hospital. A serjeant-major carries no lance.

THE DEPOSITION of Adolphus Ulick Wombwell, a Major in the 12th Lancers, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I WAS in command of the Lancers here on the day of election; I formed part of the escort in bringing in voters on that day; I brought in some voters from this side of the workhouse. I was in the square about 10 o'clock in the morning after returning with the voters; I did not see any stones or bottles thrown in the square that morning; I saw Farrier Tillier bleeding at that time from over the eye. I went out a second time on that day for voters and returned with them between one and two; I was in front of all with Mr. Green, coming into town. About 16 men wheeled round with me at this end of the bridge and at the quay side, and I intended to remain there; I did not remain there. I looked round to see what the men in the rear were doing, and I saw stones in the air and men at the Shandon side with their lances down; I left the men who were on the quay side, and I galloped over to the Shandon side; I told the men not to use the points of their lances; I cautioned them on the same morning upon the square not to use their lances; I got a blow of a stone on the knuckles at the bridge on that occasion; I was cut. Whenever I came across a man, I told him not to use a lance; I saw some of the men I had left on the quay side had gone down the quay; I gave them no direction to do so, while I was engaged at the the Shandon side; I did not see what was going on at the quay side. The first thing I did on seeing the men down the quay was to look for the trumpeter; I found a trumpeter below the Root Market, and I said, "For God's sake sound the assembly;" he did so, and the men came back by degrees; I did not see any person injured on the quay. My horse was hit on the head from either the shed or inside the wall, as I was going down to call the trumpeter; I got the men together, and took them up the quay.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters. I saw no stones thrown, until I divided the men at this side of the bridge; I saw some of the Lancers rushing at the people, and that was the reason I said to the Lancers, "None of that;" I was frightened lest they should hurt the people. It was for stopping the Lancers for fear they should lose their temper and should hurt the people. I saw the Lancers galloping on the square that morning with their lances down, and I cautioned them not to repeat it. They had no business to leave the quay side without any order, and so far as I know they did leave without an order. I saw a man on the quay when I came back, in a man's arms; I saw a hat on the top of a lance, on the quay. I cannot say who used the lance on Captain Kiely, and I took no steps to ascertain. As I went down the quay, I tried to seize one of my troopers by the bridle to stop him if I could; I said to him, "Stop," and he went on; I did not know who the man was. As I was trying to stop the whole from going on, I got into collision with one of my men on the quay, and I was near being put into the river. The men on that occasion broke away from my control; I can't tell who the men were that preceded me down the quay; I thought it more important to collect the men to prevent them from doing harm, but I did not know they would do harm, than to inquire the name of any individual.

I was in Dungarvan on the day of polling. I came in with voters, about 11; they were accompanied by an escort. As the Lancers and voters were coming in on that morning at the new made wall, about four or five yards from the turn down to M'Dower's brewery, I saw a man throw a stone, and it hit a Lancer in the back of the head. I saw the Lancer make a blow at the man, and the man went over, and lay down crying, and roared out.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters. As I did not see the Lancers kill Captain Kiely or O'Brien, I don't know the provocation they got, and I can't say whether they were justified. I swear the Lancer who used the butt of his lance on the man's head, acted with exemplary patience.

Before this was done stones were flung from either side. They were pretty large, and in numbers.

I proceeded on to Buckley's-yard with the voters, and I did not see Major Wombwell's knuckles cut. I had a revolver in my pocket, but I did not present it at the people.

I WAS in Dungarvan on the occasion of the recent election; I saw nothing of what occurred on the square in the early part of that day. I came in over the bridge after the escort, between one and two o'clock. I was not sufficiently close to see anything that occurred. I was on the causeway as the Lancers were at the town end of the bridge. While I was on the causeway, I saw some Lancers disperse some people who were on the quay side of the town end of the bridge. There seemed to be a considerable number of people there; I saw the Lancers go down the quay at a moderate pace, and the people before them. Some, and indeed the greater number I saw, did go into the Root Market. The Lancers went about as far as the gate leading into Mrs. Curran's yard; they then wheeled round, and returned towards the bridge. I saw a mob rush out of the Root Market, and pursue the Lancers up towards the bridge. There were about 10 Lancers there; I can't take upon myself to define the exact number; I can't say what the mob who pursued the soldiers threw. I saw the Lancers turn round and charge down the quay; two of the Lancers went down nearly to the end of the quay; one turned up the lane, near Mrs. Curran's yard. The people went down and turned up one of those lanes almost at right angles with the quay. The lane I speak of is below Kiely's house. The people who had so run, passed Kiely's house in getting to the lane.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters. I stood more than the length of the Court House on the causeway from the bridge, from which I saw, so far as the evidence I have given, what occurred. The death of Captain Kiely was the only occurrence connected with this election I regretted.

THE DEPOSITION of Edward Arundell, a cornet in the 12th Lancers, who being first duly sworn, deposes and says:

AFTER coming over the bridge with voters between one and two o'clock, on the 29th December last, I wheeled on the left with about eight men. They were subsequently augmented by eight more while they were there. When the eight wheeled round they pushed the crowd back by about 15 yards. After pushing the crowd back, the men wheeled round, and came back towards the bridge, and while there it was then they became augmented by about eight. I don't know the names of the eight that augmented them at that time while there, then the stoning was worse than ever. At that particular time time my horse was very restive, being struck with a stone, and I was trying to restrain him. When my horse was rearing, I saw one of the Lancers go down the quay, and the rest went after him; I followed down after them, and as I went down, stones were flung from the crowd in front. Some of the crowd were at the side; some in the boats, and the rest went in the direction of the Linney. Some went on past the Linney, and passed Kiely's house. As we passed the Root Market, I can swear to seeing five stones flung. I did not see any flung from the river side. I stopped at the Root Market, and did not go any farther; as I got parallel with the Root Market, I saw those stones flung in front of me, although the men had passed on. When I was at the Root Market, Major Wombell rode past me, and he said, "Stop," and that is the reason I stopped there. After the Major had passed on, Captain Orred's troop came up. I saw the deceased, O'Brien, as I was cantering down; he was lying on my right; I went out of the way to avoid him. I then turned back to look at him, and I saw two men carry him off. I saw a hat on the ground, and I saw a Lancer take it up with his lance, and fling it down again.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters. We pushed the people on the first occasion beyond the railings on the quay side. The hat I speak of was not on the quay; it was in the lane at the Root Market. I did not give the men any orders to go down the quay; there was no other officer there but myself. For all I know, Serjeant Major Woolley may have gone to the end of the quay, and around the town. I did not see any stones thrown on the quay except at the Root Market.

THE DEPOSITION of Serjeant-Major Harry Woolley, of the 12th Lancers, who being first duly sworn, deposes and says :—

I RECOLLECT the day of the election; I was on the square on that morning. I saw stones and a portion of a bottle flying; the portion of a bottle came from a window. I did not see any of the military struck in the square. When we were coming in with voters I was in the rear, and the stones were flying pretty thick; this was in the square, and about nine o'clock. As we were coming in and passing the Poor House, I noticed them throwing stones out of the houses, and taking the top off of a small wall. As I got nearer to the town, I saw a man on my left rear throw a stone and pass to my right rear behind. One of my men drew my attention to stones coming out of a house: I saw the stones. The man went over, and the door was closed at once. When I next looked, I saw a man on his knees and hands, and he was crying out that he was killed. Immediately that man threw a stone, I saw a Lancer go out of the ranks after him. As we came over the bridge with the voters, I heard an order given to keep the people back to the right and left, so as to allow the voters to pass through. We then walked down five or ten yards past the railings on the quay side, and the people moved back as we moved on. After getting down we returned to rejoin the body. We got mingled then with other troops; I think some of the "F" troop and "H" were there. While there, stones were flying from all quarters, principally up from the quay. I was trying to dodge the stones with my head, and while so doing, I observed some of the Lancers go down the quay. The people kept up pelting stones, and as I rode down the quay, several stones came from the water side. I don't know the men who rode down the quay, or what troop they belonged to. There must have been 30 or 40 Lancers there before they went down the quay, about the upper end of the quay, and the space there. Some of the people were before the Lancers as they were going down the quay, and the rest opened to the sides. When they were going down, I saw some stones meet them; not more than half a dozen. I saw a lot of the crowd rush into the Root Market. I saw people on board the boats. I saw stones come from the left hand side as I went down the quay. I can't say whether they came from the boats, or from the people. While I was at the Root Market, I saw no other stones thrown down there, except those from the direction of the Root Market.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters. I saw at the Root Market on the quay, Richard Browne and Richard Shannon, of my troop, and I also saw Serjeant Aicheson down there. I saw the deceased, O'Brien, lying on the ground; I did not see him knocked down. There may have been a dozen men before me then. About the time I saw Aicheson and those I have named, there must have been 20 men around in the same spot, and Captain Le Quesne was there with the men I have named. He was standing between Browne and

I BELONG to the "H" troop, Captain Stephenson. I saw stones thrown on the square that morning in or about nine o'clock. I saw nothing else. There were offensive expressions used, "Down with the Tories;" "To hell with the horse soldiers, we don't want you here." As I got over the bridge, I saw stones thrown from the Shandon side. I also saw some of another troop go to a policeman's rescue on the square.

I BELONG to "H" troop, attached to "B" troop; I was in the square in the morning of the 29th December last. I saw a glass bottle thrown out of a house; it struck nobody. I saw stones thrown. I was at the bridge about two o'clock. I saw the lock of a gate broken by a Lancer, as far as I think, it was broken with the butt end of his lance. They were continually throwing stones from inside the railings. I called a magistrate's attention to it, and he sent a body of police in there.

I BELONG to "F" troop; I was here on duty on the 29th of last month. I was on the square on that day; there were a good many people there at the time. It was about nine o'clock. I heard a good deal of hooting and yelling, and "Down with the Orange buggers." I saw a good many stones thrown there. I did not see any of my men struck. I formed one of the escort that went for voters. I returned about two o'clock. As I was coming across the bridge I saw stones thrown; they were about three or four pounds weight. I was on the quay, and saw a good many stones flung by the people there. I was struck with a stone by one of the people from the boat. I went down to the shed. I was after Captain O'ried. I saw people in the shed; they were throwing stones out of it just as we came to the shed.

THE DEPOSITION of Henry Tillier, a Serjeant of the 12th Lancers, who being first duly sworn, deposes and says:

I BELONG to Captain Orred's troop. I recollect the 29th December last, the day of the election. I was on the square between nine and ten on that morning. There were a great many people there at the time; I should say 700 or 800. I heard them say, "Down with the Lancers; down with the Tories." They were throwing stones, shouting and yelling. I saw the bottom part of a bottle which cut my eye. It was thrown from a window on the square. I saw Serjeant-major Hannon struck with a bottle on the square. I formed one of the escort who went for voters. I was in the rear. I was on the bridge about half-past one o'clock, and I saw stones thrown from right and left. The stones continued as I was passing over the bridge. The people were hooting, yelling, and shouting, and saying, "Down with the Lancers." I wheeled to the right of the bridge where I remained for a few minutes, and then went up to the hotel. I saw stones thrown from the left. There were hundreds.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters. I consider the Lancers acted with great forbearance.

I RECOLLECT the 29th of last month; I was on the square that morning a little before ten. There were a good many people there. I saw stones thrown there, but, from the position I was in, I can't say that I saw many. I saw a stone in a man's hand; I hit his hand and made him drop it. I saw a man two or three files in front of me struck by the same man in whose hand I saw the stone. It was that made me strike his hand. There was a great deal of shouting and hallooing as we brought the voters in. I formed one of the escort who went over the bridge with Major Wombwell; I was the leading man in the advance guard on the right hand. As I was coming to this side of the bridge, and before we reached the iron railings, I saw stones coming from right and left. The stones were thrown before the troops divided to right and left. I was struck five or six times as we came over the bridge; I was struck in several parts; my horse was struck twice, and stumbled, and got on his knees twice. They were shouting and yelling at the bridge. I saw heavy stones thrown from inside the railings.

I WAS in Dungarvan on the 29th of December last. I was with the military, and was nearer the Court House than the bridge. I saw stones thrown from within the railings at the Shandon side. As soon as the soldiers cleared the space at the end of the bridge, I saw a shower of stones come from inside the railing. From what I saw, I can't say that the Lancers acted with unnecessary violence towards the people. I know nothing of what took place on the quay side.

THE DEPOSITION of Charles de Valmer, Esq., of London, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:

I WAS in Dungarvan on the occasion of the late election; I was on the causeway close to the bridge on that day between one and two o'clock. I was in Sir Nugent Humble's Company. I was at Abbeyside as the voters were passing over. I saw the Lancers dividing at the town end of the bridge to right and left. My attention was more directed to the section of the Lancers that divided to the quay side. The Lancers only went a short distance down the quay not with a quick movement, and the people moved before them; the people having gone before them, the Lancers appeared to me to be turning back. As the Lancers appeared to me to be turning back, I saw a great many men come out of a small enclosure and throw stones at them; I then saw the Lancers charge back on those people. They rushed up, as quickly as they could, those lanes and alleys on the quay. They ran beyond Captain Kiely's house.

Cross-examined by Mr. Waters. I saw the Lancers with their lances in their hands galloping after the people. The people were then running away and not opposing the Lancers.

DEPOSITIONS.

County of Waterford, to wit.

THE DEPOSITION of Henry Anthony, of Dungarvan, Surgeon, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:

I ATTENDED the late Bartholomew Kiely on the 29th of December last, in one of his stores behind his house. It was half-past one, or between that and two. He was lying quite insensible when I saw him. He had a punctured wound on the chest over the right lung, about an inch and a-half above the nipple. I attended him up to his death. He died, I believe, on the 2nd of January 1867. I made a post-mortem examination of the body in conjunction with Dr. Hunt. The wound which I have already described on the right side penetrated the lung to about half its depth. He died from exhaustion caused by secondary hemorrhage, and that hemorrhage was the result of the wound I have described. The wound on Bartholomew Kiely's chest was such a wound as would be likely inflicted by a lance such as I have seen in Court some days ago.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—I was the first to see the deceased Bartholomew Kiely; Dr. Flynn was also in attendance on him, and Dr. Hunt, too. On hearing of the wound being probed, I disapproved of it; it is bad surgery, and not calculated to improve the patient; it may do no harm if properly done. Dr. Hunt continued in attendance up to the death of the deceased. Dr. Hunt saw the deceased about five o'clock on Saturday evening, the 29th December last, and called on me and appointed eight o'clock, or between that and nine for me to visit the deceased with him. We visited the deceased at this time, and on visiting, Dr. Hunt made inquiries as to whether the deceased got stimulants, and he heard he had got them; he disapproved of them, and said he would give up the case. He left the room then. He attended on the following day. I gave no order one way or the other about stimulants. He did not get better after that. From beginning to end, I saw no improvement in the deceased except when he came out of a collapsed state. He got out of a collapsed state about three hours after he received the injury. Dr. Hunt told me, when he saw the deceased, about five o'clock on Saturday evening, the 29th of December last, that he was going on favourably. When we visited the deceased at eight o'clock on same evening, Dr. Hunt discovered that the deceased had got stimulants, and I saw from the patient that there must have been some stimulants given. The result of stimulants given to a patient in that state would be likely to be to increase the action of the heart, and expose him to secondary hemorrhage. In my opinion the deceased died from secondary hemorrhage caused by the wound. In my opinion if he never got stimulants he would die.

Henry Anthony, Surgeon.

Informant is bound in the sum of 30 £. to our Sovereign Lady the Queen, to prosecute the above deposition when called on.

Taken and acknowledged before me this 18th day of January 1867.

Henry Thos. Dennehy, Coroner.

County of Waterford, to wit.

THE DEPOSITION of Ambrose Hunt, of Dungarvan, Surgeon, who being first duly sworn, deposes and says:—

I HEARD Doctor Anthony examined. I saw the wounds external and internal on the body of the deceased Bartholomew Kiely; he died from secondary hemorrhage, consequent on the wound; the wound was the primary cause of it.

Cross-examined by Mr. Julian.—I was called in about ten minutes after the wound was received, but I did not see the deceased then; Doctor Anthony and Doctor Flynn told me at that time that the patient was dead. In consequence of that I went away; I was sent for in about ten minutes after, and I refused to go. I did not go for an hour after, until I got protection. When I got protection I went; I found Kiely, who was pronounced dead, alive. Nothing that I am aware of had been done by the doctors for the deceased; I directed the hole to be closed by suture. It had not been done, and there was air passing from the lung through the wound. It was closed after the wound was probed, which I saw done by Doctor Flynn. I objected to the probing. Three hours after I saw the patient; I gave directions, on the wound being probed, that he was to get nothing but cold water, or soda water, and was not to be allowed to speak. At my visit, in three hours after, he was going on most favourably; in or about eight o'clock on same night, which was about three hours from the previous visit, I saw him again; with the treatment I ordered for the deceased on my first visit, and the favourable results I saw follow in three hours after, re-action having set in in such a mild and favourable manner, I think it was both possible and probable the life of the deceased could have been saved, and I stated such to his family at the time. On the third visit I found the patient's pulse and respiration so much accelerated, that I accused his friends of not following my directions, but following the contrary, and giving stimulants. Doctor Anthony was then present; I can't say what stimulants he got. Doctor Flynn allowed, in my presence, that he had given him brandy and opium, and some person in the room stated that he had also got beer. I refused to continue in attendance. The patient was considerably worse, in my opinion, as the result of the stimulants; he did not get better at all after that; the stimulants were likely to produce the secondary hemorrhage of which he died. I believe it was the stimulants, and nothing else caused the secondary hemorrhage. My belief is, if stimulants had not been given secondary hemorrhage would not have set in. I will not swear that secondary hemorrhage would not have set in if stimulants had not been given. In my opinion the wound was not mortal. I believe if secondary hemorrhage had not occurred, there was no reason why he should not have lived. The protection I wanted was from the people.

dying. I went for my instruments to examine the nature of the wound. In my opinion the wound was a mortal one. I probed the wound most carefully and most certainly did no injury to him by doing so. I wanted to see if it was more than a flesh wound; I saw the deceased at the post mortem; he died from secondary hemorrhage from the effects of the wound in the lung. I don't think if he got all the stimulants in town that they would do him any harm or good, as I considered from the first that the man was mortally wounded.

THE DEPOSITION of William Bowseman, of Stradbally a Schoolmaster, who, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:

I WAS in Dungarvan on the day of election the 29th December last; I was in Captain Kiely's house from about half-past 11 till about half-past one; I was speaking to Captain Kiely for a short time. The room I was in was upstairs and was what I consider to be the drawing-room. Shortly before half past one, I saw over a 100 people about the door of Captain Kiely's house. They were making a noise and disturbance, and asking for somebody to be turned out of Captain Kiely's premises; Captain Kiely was amongst them. He apparently refused them; I was in the window and Captain Kiely was under me; I can't say whether he went in or not, or where he went. He was facing his own door at the time. They asked two or three times "Will you put him out?" Mr. Kiely's place was a place for Captain Talbot's voters to meet. It was after they called for this person to be turned out that they threw a stone; I was waiting for some friends of my own. I saw the voters coming across the bridge, and it was immediately after I saw the Lancers coming down the Quay. I will not say there were not 200 in the crowd outside Captain Kiely's house.

No. 1.

County of Meath.
Trim, 24 March 1867.

In compliance with your directions of the 22nd instant, relative to the information required by the Order of the House of Commons, dated 6th March 1867, I attach a copy of the only affidavit made before me, on the occasion of the Waterford election, and upon which no special requisition was given for troops, the duty of protection having been afforded by the constabulary.

Not having been at all well during the election, I was not sufficiently able for the escort duties, and my services were therefore confined to the town of Dungarvan, where the troops and constabulary were present, and I was not therefore called upon to give requisitions to the troops except for one escort, which was, I think, furnished on one from me to Colonel Sawyer, but in the hurry of business I find I omitted to take a copy of it; however, it will be returned, I presume, by that officer.

The Under Secretary.

E. J. Barron, R.M.

County of Waterford, to Wit.

Before one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County of Waterford.

I, JOHN HUNT, of Bayview, in the county of Waterford, attorney-at-law, agent for the Honourable Captain Talbot, make oath and say, that I have heard, and believe to be true, that an organized mob are about to attack a large number of voters assembled, or about to assemble, at Durrow, the residence of Mr. Francis Mulcahy, on this evening, and that a serious breach of the peace will take place, and personal injury will be suffered. I further say that I refer to the letter of Mrs. Mulcahy, written to-day, and received by me, marked with the letter A., and I believe the contents of and statements in said letter to be true, and I require that a force of constabulary shall be at once sent from here to Durrow aforesaid to protect the men there assembled, and to prevent a breach of the peace and personal violence to the men there assembled. I say that the voters there assembled are so assembled for the purpose of proceeding from thence to Dungarvan to record their votes at the present election for the county of Waterford.

Sworn before me at Dungarvan, in the County of Waterford, this the 28th day of December 1866, a Justice of the Peace for the said County,

Before one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County of Waterford.

I, JOHN BAGGE HEARN, of Dungarvan, in the county of Waterford, Esquire, conducting agent for the Honourable Captain Talbot at the approaching election for the county of Waterford, make oath and say, that a large number of voters are to assemble at Lackendarragh in the county of Waterford, on their way to Dungarvan on to-morrow, at the hour of noon, being Friday the 28th day of December instant, to which place they are to be accompanied by an escort of cavalry from Clonmel, which escort halts there and returns to Clonmel. I received no affidavit, information, or written statement requiring such.

No. 4.

County of Louth.
Dundalk, 23 March 1867.

IN reply to communication, dated Dublin Castle, 22nd instant, relative to the late county Waterford Election, I regret to state that I did not make copies of requisitions for troops on that occasion.

On the morning of the 28th December last, having been ordered by the other magistrates (my seniors) to proceed to Beary's Cross, I sent Colonel Lanyer a requisition for troops. On the same day, when at Beary's Cross, I sent Captain Orred, 12th Lancers, a requisition for troops to accompany me to Captain Keane's house, in order that voters there assembled might join the general escort about to start for Dungarvan.

I am

I am not aware in what written statements I was directed to escort voters from Beary's Cross to Dungarvan, but my requisition to Captain Orred at Beary's Cross was in consequence of a letter from Captain Keane, J.P., saying the voters there assembled could not get to Dungarvan without escort.

One troop of the 12th Lancers was the escort furnished to me on each requisition; they (the troops) were accompanied by me (Robert C. Coote, R.M.) from Dungarvan to Berry's Cross, and from Berry's Cross to Captain Keane's.

The escort failed in bringing any voters into Dungarvan owing to the violence of the mob.

I received no written order to take charge of troops.

RETURN by John B. Greene, R.M., pursuant to Order of House of Commons of 6th March 1867, in relation to the Escort of Voters by Troops under his charge into Dungarvan, on the 28th December 1866, being the day previous to the Polling.

1. ORDERS or requisitions for escort of troops for voters remain in the hands of commanding officers to whom they were issued, copies of which can only be furnished by them.

2. An information, upon which the escort of cavalry alluded to in No. 3 was granted, was sworn on the evening of 27th December 1866, by Mr. John Bagge Hearne, the conducting agent for one of the candidates; this information (of which I have not a copy) remains in the hands of Captain Barry, the permanent resident magistrate at Dungarvan, and who was also the senior resident magistrate present at Dungarvan during the election.

See copy, with Mr. Barry's report.

3. I cannot give the exact number or strength of the military escort, but I accompanied a troop of cavalry under command of Major Wombwell (12th Lancers), from Keiley's Cross into Dungarvan (nine miles) on Friday 28th December 1866; on that occasion we brought in about 120 persons stated to be voters, whom we escorted to and left at the house of a person named FitzGerald, in the Square of Dungarvan.

4. Any documents of this nature which may be in existence remain in the hands of Captain Barry, resident magistrate at Dungarvan.

5. I am unable to furnish this information.

No. 7.

County Waterford,
Carrick-on-Suir, 23 March 1866.

In reply to your letter of 22nd instant, and enclosure, requiring copies of requisition for troops to escort voters previous to the day of polling at the late election for the county Waterford, I have to state that I forwarded a general requisition for troops, police, and magistrates, on the 20th December 1866, and therewith enclosed the application from the election agent.

On the 28th December, the day before election, Mr. M'Cloud, resident magistrate, with the advice and concurrence of the other stipendiary magistrates, went with a cavalry escort to patrol the roads in the direction of Mithel.

On the same afternoon I received a telegraphic message from Mr. F. Malcolmson, J.P., for the immediate attendance of cavalry at Curraghmore Gate. I immediately went with a half-troop of the 6th Dragoon Guards, Captain Godman commanding, and having found no disturbance at once returned.

In the night of the same day Mr. M'Louglin, s.i., at my request, sent a police escort in the direction of Mithel, to recover voters alleged to have been forced off cars.

Before daylight on the day of the polling all the available military, police, and magistrates were on duty at Carrickbeg, and peace and order were strictly maintained the entire day.

I enclose a copy of my letter of the 20th December, but have no copies of the requisitions which were written and handed to the military officers at the moment, as required, on the polling day and the day previous. Those original requisitions were forwarded by Major Drew, 75th Regiment, commanding here, to the Quartermaster General, Dublin, and copies to the Quartermaster General, Cork.

County Tipperary,
Carrick-on-Suir, 20 December 1866.

I BEG leave to forward the enclosed application for troops and police at Carrickbeg, for the approaching election in the county Waterford.

I have conferred with the Sub-Inspector of Police, and the officer commanding the troops here, and they both think that a large force will be necessary. There are about 25 police constables in Carrick-on-Suir and Carrickbeg, and about 100 infantry and 25 mounted dragoons, but the Major commanding thinks he should not denude the barracks altogether, and thinks that not more than 40 infantry and 25 dragoons could be rendered available for the election purposes.

The nomination of candidates is to take place on Wednesday next, and it is expected that the following Saturday will be the day for polling.

I beg further to state, that I have invited two county magistrates to assist in taking charge of the military, and as they each decline, I beg that magisterial assistance be also afforded.

To Sir Thomas Larcom.

I also say, that protection is necessary for the cars employed to convey the voters of said Captain Talbot, both in going for the voters, as well as returning with same; and protection is also necessary at Carrick-on-Suir, which is only divided from Carrickbeg by a bridge, and at an earlier period than the polling day, to protect those acting for said candidate who have already been threatened with violence; and that the tally rooms of said Captain Talbot will require protection before and during said election.

IN compliance with his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant's wishes, I beg to state that the duties performed by me at the Waterford election were as follows:

On Friday the 28th December, the day before the polling, I proceeded with an escort of about 30 dragoons and four police, to escort voters into Waterford from a place called the Sweeps, and left the voters at the hotel. The day of polling, 29th December, I accompanied two escorts composed of dragoons and police, from the hotel to the Court-house; this duty I did at the request of the High Sheriff. I can forward no copies of requisitions or orders, as I gave none, and those issued by the High Sheriff were not addressed to me.

Armagh, 23 March 1867.

I HAVE this day received from the Government a communication with regard to information to be supplied to an Order of the House of Commons, dated 6th March 1867.

I was stationed at Lismore during the last election for the county of Waterford.

I did not give any requisition to any officer for troops to escort voters on any day or days previous to the day of polling.

As far as I can discern, these two answers embrace all the information I am asked for, as the questions about affidavits, written statements, &c. are made to depend upon the second answer.

But the Government may desire to be informed (as I reported at the time) that upon the day previous to the polling I escorted, with 12 constables placed in cars, some voters, in number about 40, from Tallaght or Tallow, to Lismore. I believe this escort was furnished in consequence of an application in person from the agent of one of the candidates. I was asked to bring cavalry for this escort, but from the best information afforded to me, I thought I could do the duty with police, and as not the very smallest opposition was displayed I was justified in the result, and the work was done more expeditiously, and without parade or excitement.

The Under Secretary.

No. 14.

New Ross, 23 March 1867.

WITH reference to the enclosed, I beg to furnish the only order I received to escort voters on December 28th, the day preceding the day of polling at the Waterford election, in pursuance of which I accompanied to Shelly's public-house an escort, consisting of four of the constabulary, and one officer and about half a troop of the 5th Dragoon Guards, distant about four miles. We accompanied about 60 voters, more or less, to Dobbyn's Hotel in the city of Waterford, where they remain.

Dear Sir,

Waterford, 28 December 1867.

An escort of cavalry and police will leave Waterford to-day to meet electors at the hour of three o'clock at Shelly's public-house on the Dromore-road, and I should be glad if you would accompany them.

No. 17.

Cahir, County of Tipperary,
23 March 1867.

With reference to your communication of 22nd instant, enclosing Order of House of Commons, dated 6th March 1867, I have to inform you that the only escort I was on was from Clonmel through Ballymacarbury, on road to Dungarvan, on the 28th September 1866, and the escort consisted of two officers and 40 men of the 6th Dragoon Guards, and one officer and 25 men of the constabulary, as far as Ballymacarbury, but then I was obliged to detach half of the constabulary under their officer on another road. We proceeded as far as a place called Beary's Cross.

The following is a copy of the requisition from the Hon. Captain Talbot's agent, on which I acted:

"Dear Sir,

"Clonmel, 27 September 1866.

"In consequence of having a very large number of voters to convey to Dungarvan, from the district of the county lying between this town and Dungarvan to-morrow, a large force of cavalry and police will be required. I have reason to believe that great violence and intimidation will be resorted to if sufficient protection be not granted.

"To E. B. Warburton, Esq., R.M.

"Yours, &c.
(signed) "Joseph Honner."

The result of this escort I have already reported.

Major General Sir Thos. A. Larcom, K.C.B.

ENGLAND AND WALES.

BOROUGH OF ABERAVON.

ALL freemen residing within the requisite distance are admitted on the Parliamentary Roll, and on the death of a freeman the eldest son is enrolled and placed on the Register.

It is not necessary to reply to the other inquiries, as freemen in this borough are not admitted in any way except in the mode mentioned.

3 August 1866.

William Jones, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF ANDOVER.

THERE are only three freemen having political privileges now living; they are the remnants of the old corporation, and will retain their privileges for life only.

26 June 1866.

H. Footner, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF BARNSTAPLE.

RETURN showing the Claims that are required and allowed as entitling the Applicant to receive the Freedom of the Town of Barnstaple.

Servitude and Birth.—To entitle the applicant to the freedom of the borough under servitude, he must have served an apprenticeship to a freeman. Under the head of birth, the freedom is granted to all sons.

It cannot be acquired by marriage.

All freemen are not admitted to the Parliamentary Electoral Roll, but only those who establish their claim before the revising barrister.

17 October 1866.

Lionel Bencraft, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF BATH.

ONLY those persons who were members of the corporation prior to the passing of the Reform Act (2 Will. 4, c. 45), and who have uninterruptedly continued members of the town council, are entitled to vote.

Prior to the Reform Act, all members of the corporation were obliged to be freemen either by servitude, gift, or purchase, which were the only classes of freemen recognised in Bath.

At the present time there is only one freeman on the Parliamentary Electoral Roll as a freeman voter.

11 June 1866.

John Stone, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF BEAUMARIS.

THERE are only two freemen entitled to be admitted on the Parliamentary Electoral Roll in the borough of Beaumaris, who are placed on the Register as having been members of the old corporation of this borough, anterior to the passing of the Municipal Corporation Act, and there are no other freemen in the borough.

17 August 1866.

J. Watkins Jones, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF BEDFORD.

QUALIFICATION for Burgess.—Every son of a burgess born after his father's admission is entitled to be admitted a freeman, and by such admission becomes a burgess.

Title to admission as Freemen :

Birth.—The son first born after his father's admission is entitled to his freedom at the age of 21.

Apprenticeship.—Service for seven years with a freeman, resident or non-resident ; an assignment to another master is not allowed.

Admission by purchase or gift was abolished by 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 3. No right to freedom is acquired by marriage.

The admission of freemen to the Parliamentary Electoral Roll is regulated by the Act 2 Will. 4, c. 45, s. 32.

16 November 1866.

Theod Wm. Pearse, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF BERWICK-UPON-TWEED.

RETURN showing what entitles Applicants to receive the Freedom of the said Borough, so as to be placed on the Parliamentary Electoral Roll as Freemen Voters in each of the cases specified hereunder.

By Apprenticeship.—First, Sons of non-freemen serving an apprenticeship to a resident freeman of seven years, if bound after 16 and before 19 years of age, and paying 30 l. to the corporation on being enrolled as apprentices. Second, Sons of freemen (born before their fathers' admission) serving apprenticeship as above without paying anything to the corporation.

By Birth.—The eldest and all other lawful sons of freemen on attaining 21 years of age.

By Marriage.—None are entitled by marriage.

Who are entitled to be on Parliamentary Electoral Roll.—All freemen resident within the borough, or within the statutory limits of seven miles.

9 June 1866.

R. Horne, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF BEVERLEY.

RETURN as to the acquisition of Freedoms in the Borough of Beverley.

By Birth.—Freedom is granted to all the sons of freemen born within the limits of the municipal borough. I am not aware of any instance in this borough where a grandson has been admitted a freeman in right of his grandfather, i. e. where the father has not also been admitted.

By Servitude.—Applicant must have served an apprenticeship of seven years to a free-man being a trader within the municipal limits.

Freedom is not acquired by marriage. All freemen resident within the proper limits are admitted to the Parliamentary Electoral Roll.

9 June 1866.

Thos. Crust, per J. M., Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF BOSTON.

THE applicant must have served an apprenticeship to a freeman of the borough for seven years before he is entitled to claim his freedom.

N.B.—The only mode of a person being admitted to the freedom of the borough is by servitude.

All freemen are admitted to the Parliamentary Electoral Roll.

N.B.—When a freeman ceases to reside in the borough his name is taken off the Parliamentary Register of Voters.

25 June 1866.

F. T. White, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF BRIDGNORTH.

TERMS of admission to Freedom of the Borough by Birth.—Proof of birth satisfactory to the mayor, as being the son of a freeman duly enrolled in the freemen's roll, and born after the admission of such parent to his freedom.

All the sons are equally entitled to their freedom upon the terms above stated. No title to freedom by marriage with the daughters of freemen, or otherwise by marriage.

Terms of admission to the Freedom of the Borough by Servitude.—Proof of service as an apprentice for the term of seven years, within the borough town of Bridgnorth, to a freeman duly enrolled in freeman's roll, and under an indenture of apprenticeship duly executed.

Title of Freemen to be placed on the Parliamentary Electoral Roll as a Freeman.—All freemen entitled to be placed on the Parliamentary Electoral Roll, provided they have, for the six months next preceding the 31st of July, resided within the borough, or within seven statute miles of the usual polling place in such borough, as required by the Registration Act, 1832.

12 June 1866.

John J. Smith, Town Clerk.

CITY OF BRISTOL.

RETURN showing the claims that are required and allowed, as entitling the Applicant to receive the Freedom of the City of Bristol, and to be placed on the Parliamentary Electoral Roll as a Freeman Voter.

Servitude.—The applicant must have served an apprenticeship for seven years to a freeman. Apprenticeship to a trader within the municipal limits, not being a freeman, does not confer the right of freedom.

Birth.—All sons of freemen born within the ancient limits of the city, after the father has taken up his freedom, are entitled to their freedom. The grandsons of freemen are not so entitled, unless their fathers are freemen.

Marriage.—Marriage to the daughters of freemen, if such daughters have been born within the ancient limits of the city, after their father has taken up his freedom, confers the right of freedom on the husbands. Marriage to a widow of a freeman also confers the right.

Freedoms acquired by marriage since the Reform Act do not confer the Parliamentary franchise.

15 June 1866.

Dan. Burges, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF BUCKINGHAM.

NUMBER of freemen at present on the Parliamentary Roll, two.

Qualification.—The two freemen at present on the roll are the surviving members of the old corporation, who formerly elected the two Members for the borough. As they die out no fresh ones are appointed.

Henry Thorpe, Mayor and Returning Officer.

BOROUGH OF CALNE.

THERE are only three freemen on the present Parliamentary Roll, and as they die off they become extinguished. I believe they are the survivors of the old guild stewards who (with the old burgesses) used to return the Member of Parliament for Calne prior to the Reform Act of 1832.

7 December 1866.

E. T. Clarkson, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF CAMBRIDGE.

RETURN showing the Claims required, &c. by Persons entitled to be placed on the Parliamentary Electoral Roll as Freemen of the said Borough.

Servitude.—Apprenticeship to a freeman.

Birth.—To the eldest sons of freemen on their admittance.

Remarks.—All freemen are admitted to the Parliamentary Electoral Roll.

16 June 1866.

Edmond Foster, Town Clerk.

CITY OF CANTERBURY.

RETURN of the requirement in force in this City for Admission on the Freemen's Roll.

Servitude.—Under this head the applicant must have served an apprenticeship to a freeman who has carried on business the whole time within the city limits, and also have lived, during the time of apprenticeship, within such limits to be entitled to be admitted on freeman's roll.

Birth.—The freedom is granted to all sons of freemen born subsequently to the father taking up his freedom, and must be born within the city liberties. The father must not have taken up his freedom by purchase. It is not granted to the grandsons of freemen.

Marriage.—Under this head I cannot find that anyone has been admitted for the last 20 years; and since 9th September 1835 I can only find that three persons have been admitted on account of marriage, two of these having married in 1829. It certainly would not extend to the grand-daughters of freemen.

All freemen are admitted on the Parliamentary Electoral Roll provided they reside within seven miles of the city; and as soon as they go beyond the distance they are struck off, though still on the freeman's roll. I should not insert any one admitted on account of marriage.

12 June 1866.

Rest. Wm. Flint, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF CARDIFF.

I CANNOT give you the information required. I have been so short a time in office, I do not know what entitles a party to receive the freedom.

16 November 1866.

Montague Grover, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF CARDIGAN.

THERE are no freemen in this borough entitled to receive their freedom by virtue of servitude, birth, or marriage. The only freemen on the Electoral Roll are the "old burgesses."

12 June 1866.

T. Morgan, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF CARLISLE.

RETURN showing the Claims that are required and allowed as entitling Applicants to receive the Freedom of the City, and to be placed on the Parliamentary Electoral Roll.

Servitude.—The applicant must have served an apprenticeship of seven years to a freeman to constitute a claim.

Birth.—The freedom is granted to all the sons, but not to grandsons.

CITY OF CHICHESTER.

I HAVE very carefully searched all the records of this city in my possession, and am unable to find any documents or particulars which will enable me to prepare a return as requested, relative to the admission of freemen.

I have found in one of the minute books the following entries, viz.:—

27th August 1706.—It is unanimously ordered that after this day all persons that shall be made free citizens shall pay to the corporation 40 s. for such their freedom.

18th March 1723.—It was and is ordered and agreed that no person or persons be admitted into or made free of the merchants' guild without paying 40 s. for a fine for the same.

25th August 1729.—The order for payment of 40 s. by persons made free re-enforced.

There has not been a freeman admitted since the 2nd January 1833.

On the Parliamentary Electoral Roll for the present year there are two freemen and eight burgesses, who are the survivors of those who were living at the time of the passing of the Municipal Act.

Benj. Woodman, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF NEWCASTLE-UNDER-LYME.

THE freedom is acquired by birth, which extends to every son or grandson of a freeman born within the borough, while his father is resident there, and by servitude.

Freedom by servitude is acquired by an apprenticeship for seven years, and service under it, to an inhabitant of the borough. Formerly it was held necessary that the servitude should be to a freeman; but, in 1781, a practice was introduced, as a matter of indulgence, and not by virtue of any bye-law for that purpose, to admit to the freedom in respect to servitude with inhabitants generally, whether freemen or not, and that practice has subsisted ever since.

Freedom is not acquired by marriage to a daughter or grand-daughter of a freeman.

All resident freemen are admitted to the Parliamentary Electoral Roll.

1 December 1866.

Thos Harding, Town Clerk.

All freemen resident within the borough, or within seven miles of it, are admitted to the Electoral Roll.

John Clayton, Town Clerk.

As to Servitude alone.—Persons other than sons of freemen, who serve to a freeman in the town of Nottingham under articles for five years, if he be a surgeon or attorney, or under an apprenticeship for seven years in every other case, are entitled to be admitted in right of servitude.

Apprenticeship of a person who is not the son of a freeman to a trader within the municipal limits (not being a freeman) does not constitute a claim.

BOROUGH OF TIVERTON.

SINCE the passing of the Municipal Corporation Act, 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76, there has not been, to the best of my knowledge, any claim made by any person to be placed on the freeman's roll of this borough.

There are now only four freemen on such roll, and these were members of the corporation of the borough before the passing of the above-mentioned Act, and are the only surviving members of such corporation, and, as such, are considered to be the only persons entitled to the freedom of the town, and to be placed on the Parliamentary Electoral Roll as freemen voters.

June 1866.

CITY AND BOROUGH OF WELLS.

RETURN showing the Claims that are required and allowed as entitling the Applicant to receive the Freedom of the City and Borough of Wells, and to be placed on the Electoral Roll as a Freeman Voter.

By Birth.—The eldest son of a burgess.

By Marriage.—Persons married to the eldest daughter of a burgess.

By Servitude.—This right is acquired—

1st. By having served an apprenticeship of seven years, by indenture, in the borough to some handicraft, trade, &c.

2nd. By the eldest son of a freeman serving an apprenticeship to his father, without indenture, from 14 to 21 years of age.

To make such Apprenticeship to a Trader complete—

The apprentice must be bound to the master as an in-door apprentice to board and lodge.

But where a master has, for the sake of convenience, allowed the apprentice to board and lodge at the house of the father, or any friend of the apprentice, and has paid compensation for the same, that has been considered a sufficient residence, if the apprentice slept within the borough.

The service must be a full seven years.

This latter right may be lost—

1st. By the apprentice absenting himself from his master's service during his apprenticeship without his master's leave.

2nd. By the apprentice receiving wages from his master during the apprenticeship.

3rd. By the apprentice marrying during his apprenticeship.

N.B.—Burgesses were created by the corporation ex gratia.

Every person claiming as a freeman by servitude must be admitted to one of the trading companies, of which there were formerly seven in this city.

Any person entitled under the above heads to be a freeman, and having complied with the above requirements, is admitted to the Parliamentary Electoral Roll.

R. C. Blakeway, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF WIGAN.

C. Hilton, Town Clerk.

CITY OF WINCHESTER.

THERE are only two freemen surviving, and they are on the Parliamentary Register. No freeman have been made since the Reform Bill, and no individual can now claim the freedom of the city under any qualification; those surviving were made by the old corporation previous to the Reform Bill.

14 June 1866.

Walter Bailey, Town Clerk.

CITY OF WORCESTER.

THE following has been the practice in the city of Worcester as to allowing claims of persons as freemen voters:—

By Servitude.—The applicant must have served seven years apprenticeship to a person in the city, who was a freeman at the date of the indenture. Proof is required of seven full years bonâ fide service in the city; and, if the master has died during the term, the apprentice must have been properly assigned to a freeman to complete the apprenticeship, with no other interregnum than absolutely necessary to prepare an assignment.

By Birth.—The first born son (after the father has been made free) of a freeman who has been admitted before the 1st of March 1831 is admitted to take up his freedom; also the first born son (after the father has been made free) of a freeman who has been, or hereafter may be, admitted a freeman by apprenticeship.

Servitude.—The claimant must have served an apprenticeship to a freeman. Apprenticeship to a trader within the municipal limits does not constitute any claim for admission.

Marriage.—Marriage to any daughter of a freeman constitutes a valid claim for admission to the freedom; but marriage to the grand-daughter of a freeman constitutes no claim for admission in this borough.

All freemen are admitted to the Parliamentary Roll for electoral purposes, without any exception, within this borough.

Marriage.—Marriage to any daughter of a freeman, born subsequent to the obtaining of freedom by the father, entitles the husband to his freedom of the city.

W. J. Henry, Town Clerk.

No claims for the freedom of the City of Kilkenny have been made to the present corporation, or since the Act of 3 & 4 Vict. c. 108, intituled "An Act for the Regulation of Municipal Corporations in Ireland," came into operation in this city.

13 June 1866.

James McStein, Town Clerk.

CITY OF WATERFORD.

THE admission to the freedom of the City of Waterford has, up to the year 1843, been regulated by the following bye-laws:—

“Council Chamber, 3 December 1818.

“BYE-LAWS, Statutes, Constitutions, Decrees, and Ordinances for the good rule and government of the City of Waterford, with respect to the several rights to the freedom thereof, and admission thereto, framed, constituted, decreed, ordained, made, and agreed and declared and enacted to be the standing bye-laws, regulations, and statutes of the Corporation, to be observed and adhered to in all cases whatsoever.

“1st. That the only valid or legal claims to the freedom of this city are in right of birth, marriage, and apprenticeship, and that the only proper mode of applying to be admitted thereto is by petition to the mayor and common council.

“2nd. That no person is entitled to his freedom, or shall be thereto admitted in any of the rights aforesaid, except he be of the full age of 21 years, and actually residing within the county of the said city at the time of presenting his petition, and during the 12 months next preceding, except he be then serving in His Majesty's Navy or Army, and at other times inhabiting within this city.

“3rd. That no person is entitled to his freedom in right of birth, or shall be in future admitted thereto, unless his father was, at the time of such birth, an admitted and sworn freeman upon the corporation books.

“4th. That no person is entitled to his freedom in right of marriage, or shall be thereto admitted, except his wife's father was an admitted and sworn freeman upon the corporation books at the time of such marriage, and that his wife be still living at the time that the petitioner shall present his petition.

“5th. That no person is entitled to his freedom in right of apprenticeship, or shall be admitted thereto, unless he shall have served an apprenticeship for seven years (except in professions otherwise provided for by statute) within this city, during the entire of which seven years the master shall be resident therein, by regular indenture, to an admitted and sworn freeman upon the corporation books, and who was so admitted and sworn during the whole term of such apprenticeship: and it being desirable and necessary for the prevention of fraud and perjury, and for other good reasons, that apprenticeships should be certain and notorious, it is hereby further ordered and enacted, that every such indenture and assignment thereof which shall from henceforward be executed shall, within one calendar month from the execution thereof, respectively be enrolled in the office of the town clerk, or, in failure or default thereof, that all such indentures, assignments, or apprenticeships shall not be of any force, avail, or effect in support of any claim or petition to admission to the freedom, but shall in this respect be null and void to all intents and purposes.”

Since 1843 the third bye-law has not been strictly adhered to, as sons of fathers not admitted and sworn at the time of the birth have been admitted by the respective mayors of the city.

Since 1843 the fourth bye-law has not been adhered to, inasmuch as sons-in-law of the fathers who were not free at the time of the marriage have been admitted by the authorities aforesaid.

This class of freemen has also been admitted after the death of the wife.

The fifth bye-law is still adhered to, save in so far as it directs the enrolment of indentures.

9 June 1866.

John O'Brien, Town Clerk.

Note.—This Return has been compiled from the Electoral Returns (Boroughs and Counties), 1866. The number of male occupiers, however, is somewhat in excess of that shown by those Returns, in consequence of the correction of an inaccuracy which was discovered in the original Return furnished from one of the parishes within the Borough of Liverpool. In some instances, where the names of Compound Householders do not appear on the Rate Book, the number of tenements is given.

INHABITED HOUSES (VOTERS).

Note.—The Electoral Returns (1866) do not show the occupations at a rateable value below 4*l*. The number of male occupations at and under 6*l*. rateable value has been arrived at by deducting the male occupations above 6*l*. rateable value from the total number of male occupations as shown by the Gross Estimated Rental Returns.

In some instances, when the names of Compound Householders do not appear on the rate book, the number of tenements is given instead.

Under the Small Tenements Rating Act the vestry of any parish is empowered to order that the owners of all tenements of which the yearly rateable value shall not exceed 6*l*., shall be rated instead of the owners. In 58 boroughs the Act is in force in all the parishes. In 98 boroughs it has been adopted by some of the parishes only.

MALE OCCUPIERS (BOROUGH).

I have no record of the numbers who polled, and if I had it would probably be fallacious, as in many cases there have been no contests. Under a recent Act of Parliament the municipal elections are frequently settled by the nomination.

Edmond Foster, Town Clerk.

BOROUGH OF CANTERBURY.

THE numbers of registered voters on the lists for this city and borough amount to 1,575.

I am unable to give the numbers who voted at the municipal elections for the year 1852, and for all subsequent years, having no papers or records in my possession of the numbers; all that I could possibly give would be the numbers who voted for the successful candidates at each election when there were contests. In the last four or five years, in some wards there were no contests, when there would be no voting in such wards.

BOROUGH OF CARDIFF.

THERE are 1,643 municipal voters upon the Burgess Roll, and 710 voted at the last contested election. I cannot give the return for previous years, as I was not town clerk.

BOROUGH OF DORCHESTER.

The number of persons now on the register, and entitled to vote at municipal elections for this borough is 586, and that 416 persons voted at the municipal elections in 1864 and 248 in 1865. I regret that I am unable to give the numbers voting at elections in years anterior to 1864 as the voting papers, after having been kept for inspection by the burgesses the period required by law, have been destroyed.

CITY OF MANCHESTER.

THE number of electors on the municipal list for this city is 17,995 for the year 1865-6.

The town clerk has no means of giving the information demanded as to the numbers who voted at the municipal elections for and since the year 1852. In most cases in this city, both before and since the passing of the "Municipal Corporation Act, 1859," the ward elections have been nominal, one or two votes only in the former case having been recorded, and in the latter the elections having been generally determined by a single nomination only having been sent in. In the case of wards where contests have taken place, it has not been thought necessary to keep the poll books for more than about three or four years, and the information in the very partial form indicated could only therefore be given for that period.

Duplicate votes are deducted. In the ward of St. Andrew's, South, it will be found in some years that the actual number of voters exceed the number of registered voters; this is owing to the deduction for duplicate votes; a voter having a qualification for the ward in which his business premises are situate, as well as a qualification for the ward in which is his residence. The vacancies in the column Number of Voters from the year 1859, shows that there was no contest in those wards, and consequently no votes. Previous to that year the number of voters, in comparison with the number of registered voters, show the poll to have been kept open but a short time during the election for that year.

East Ward	-	-	-	-	-	985
West Ward	-	-	-	-	-	1,320
TOTAL	-	-	-	-	-	2,305

In the East Ward there has not been a contested election since 1861; as a rule, in the prior years not one-third of the electors took the trouble to record their votes, although on one occasion in 1855 as many as 600 came to the poll.

In the West Ward in 1852, 1855, 1858, 1859, there were no contests; as a rule, in other years not one-third recorded their votes; last November we had two elections, one on 1st November, when 408 polled, and in a few days later, to supply an extraordinary vacancy, as many as 605 voted, being still less than half the registered voters.

I have no means of making a return of the number who voted at any municipal election. The Act requires the voting papers to be kept for six months, after which they are destroyed. There was no contest last November.

NUMBER who voted at each Eletion.

This information cannot be given as the aldermen and assessors are not required by the Municipal Corporation Act to publish, and do not publish, the numbers voting for each candidate, but only the names of the persons elected. And there are often no contests in some wards.

On the last November elections, there were contests in every ward, and although the names of the persons elected were alone published, it appears that about 5,318 persons voted on that occasion.

CITY OF OXFORD.

THE Registered Citizens who are Entitled to Vote at Municipal Elections are - - - - - 2,939

With respect to the numbers who voted at the Municipal Elections for the year 1852, and for all subsequent years, I am unable to make a Return, for the following reasons:—

I have not the conduct of these elections, which are held before an alderman and two assessors of each of our five wards. They have no poll-books. They appoint their own poll-clerks, whose duty, according to the practice of the elections here, is, when the voter's name is called out, to identify him by the Burgess Roll; and the alderman refuses to say for whom he votes, or to allow any one to inspect the voting paper which he files. At the close of the voting, the numbers are added up and the result declared, and then the papers are handed to me, kept for six months, sec. stat., and then destroyed, so that I have only the voting papers for November last, the result of which I give below.

I may add that a great many of the respectable citizens take no interest in the elections, and that I have never known the rolls nearly polled out: e. g., see the following numbers:—

THE number of voters on the present register for this city is 775.

As to the second part of the Return requiring "the Numbers who Voted at Municipal Elections for the Year 1852, and for all subsequent Years," I can only say it is impossible to furnish such a Return. By Section 35 of the Municipal Corporations Act (5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76), the voting papers are required to be kept in the town clerk's office for six calendar months after each election, and though I have always preserved them much longer than that, I have now none prior to the year 1863-4.

BOROUGH OF TRURO.

THE Number of Registered Voters on the Municipal Lists of this Borough is - 1,324.

I cannot supply the numbers who voted at the municipal elections for the year 1852 and for all subsequent years, in consequence of the voting papers not having been kept beyond the time required by the Municipal Act; and it has not been the practice here to keep any record thereof. Independently of this, the borough is divided into two wards, and it frequently happens that a contest takes place in one, whilst in the other only a sufficient number of candidates are nominated to fill the vacancies, in which case no voting would take place in that ward.

No record has been kept in this borough of the number of electors voting at municipal elections, the practice being for the respective aldermen and assessors to return the names of the persons elected without giving the numbers of the persons who had voted, and as by section 35 of the Municipal Corporation Act (5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76), the voting papers are not required to be kept longer than six months after any election, it is impossible to give the numbers of electors who have voted at the several elections since 1852; and it is submitted that even if the numbers could be given, it would afford no sound basis from which to deduce any correct conclusion, inasmuch as since the passing of the Act to amend the law relating to municipal elections (22 Viet., c. 35) there have been numerous elections in the several wards of this borough, where the number of persons nominated to the office of councillor was the same as the number to be elected, and who were therefore deemed to be duly elected accordingly without any votes being recorded, and in several instances where the number of persons nominated has exceeded the number to be elected, there has been no real contest, and the elections have been closed after a few votes have been recorded, and the poll has been closed after the lapse of one hour, during which no vote has been tendered for any candidate.

BOROUGH OF WINDSOR.

THERE are 731 municipal electors on the ward lists of this borough for the year ending 1st November 1866.

It is impossible to make out the return of the numbers who voted at the municipal elections in this borough from the year 1852 to the present time.

The borough is divided into two wards, and some years there have been contests in one, and not in the other, and sometimes no contest in either ward, and therefore no return of the slightest statistical value can be given.

H. FLEMING,
Secretary.

(Major Jervis.)

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
13 March 1867.

MEMORANDUM.

THE order requires the number of voters at a £. 7 rental, and at a £. 6 and a £. 5 rental. It is assumed that the order was intended to refer to male occupiers, and not to voters; and also that the aggregate number of occupiers above, as well as at those amounts, is required to be given.

The numbers of male occupiers have been taken from the Electoral Returns, 1866. In some instances the names of the compound occupiers do not appear on the valuation lists or rates from which the original returns were compiled, and in those instances the number of tenements, and not of male occupiers, is inserted.

The second column shows the number of £. 10 electors, exclusive of double entries, but with respect to the freemen, scot and lot voters, &c., the total number has been given inclusive of those who are also on the Register as £. 10 voters. In the column showing the total number of voters on the Register, all double qualifications have been excluded, so that by comparing that column with the column showing the number of £. 10 voters, the number of freemen, &c., who are not on the Register as £. 10 voters, can be ascertained.

The number of householders on the Municipal Register is inclusive of double entries.

The Electoral Returns give a total of 425,007 municipal electors. The number stated in this Return is 430,774. The difference is occasioned by including in the latter the number of municipal electors in the contributory boroughs of Wales and Monmouth districts, whereas in the former return "the number was restricted to those on the Burgess Lists for the boroughs actually named."

The population within the municipal limits of each borough is that stated in the Census Returns.

13 March 1867.

RETURN showing POPULATION within Limits of each PARLIAMENTARY BOROUGH; Number of £.10 VOTERS and of FREEMEN, and Total Number of VOTERS on Register of each Borough; Number of MALE OCCUPIERS at a £.7 Rental, at a £.6 Ratal, and at a £.5 Ratal for each Borough; POPULATION of each Borough within Municipal Limits, and Number of HOUSEHOLDERS on Municipal Register of each Borough.

* This number is in excess of that shown by the Electoral Returns, 1866, in consequence of the correction of an error in the original Return for the parishes within the Borough.

† There are also 4,978 houses exceeding 6 L. gross yearly rent, and not exceeding 9 L. They are entered in the Rate Book in groups in aggregate sum, and, as the Rate Books do not show the number of them at and above 7 L. gross rental, they are necessarily omitted in this column, although included in an estimate in the rateable value columns.

‡ This number is exclusive of compound tenements, which are included in the rateable value columns.

H. FLEMING,
Secretary.

(Mr. Hunt.)

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
15 March 1867.

MEMORANDUM.

THIS Return has been compiled from the Electoral Returns (Boroughs and Counties), 1866. Those Returns, however, do not show, except in a few cases, the number of tenements for which the owners are actually assessed instead of the occupiers, under the Small Tenements Rating Act, and Local Rating Acts. In order to ascertain the number of male occupations within the limits of those Acts, the following method has been pursued :

1. With respect to the boroughs in which the Small Tenements Rating Act is in force in all the parishes, the number of occupations at and under 6 l. rateable value has been arrived at by deducting the male occupations above 6 l. rateable value from the total number of male occupations, as shown by the Gross Estimated Rental Returns.

2. With respect to the boroughs in which the Small Tenements Rating Act is in force in some of the parishes only, the original returns for those parishes have been referred to and the numbers ascertained in the same manner.

3. In cases where any Local Act is in force, the numbers within the limit of the Act have been arrived at by a similar process.

In some instances the Local Acts include houses let out in apartments, or for a shorter period than a quarter of a year, although the value is above the limit specified in those Acts. There are no data upon which the number of occupations of this description can be computed, and consequently they are included in the occupations for which the occupier is liable to be personally rated.

The same observation applies to those boroughs in which the provisions of the 59 Geo. 3, c. 12, are in force.

The parishes in which the Small Tenements Rating Act and the 59 Geo. 3, c. 12, appear to have been adopted, correspond with those contained in the Return No. 33 (1862) as corrected by the Return No. 125 (1866). The latter Return was issued subsequently to the preparation of the Electoral Returns, 1866.

In those cases where the actual number of compound occupiers has been returned, that number has been inserted in the present Return.

In other cases the number of male occupations includes houses and other buildings in the occupation of the owners, and which, for that reason, would not be compounded for.

Poor Law Board, 15 March 1867.

RETURNS showing, in respect of the several PARLIAMENTARY BOROUGHs in England and Wales, the Number of BOROUGHs in which the SMALL TENEMENTS RATING ACT (13 & 14 Vict. c. 99), the 59 Geo. 3, c. 12, or any LOCAL ACT for Rating the OWNERS instead of the OCCUPIERS, is in force in all or any of the PARISHES, distinguishing those Boroughs in which the Small Tenements Rating Act is wholly from those in which it is partly in force, and distinguishing, in like manner, those Boroughs in which there is a Local Rating Act:—The Number of MALE OCCUPATIONS within the limits of Value prescribed by those Acts respectively (showing separately the Number at and over a Gross Estimated Rental of £.10):—And, the Number of MALE OCCUPATIONS not within such Limits, and the Total Number of MALE OCCUPATIONS within each BOROUGH.

* The provisions of the 59 Geo. 3, c. 12, s. 19, appear to have been adopted in the parish of Preston (Preston Borough), and in St. Lawrence and St. Mary (Reading Borough). By this Act the vestry of any parish is empowered to resolve and direct that the owners of all houses, apartments, or dwellings which are let at any rent or rate not exceeding 20*l.* nor less than 6*l.* by the year, for any less term than one year, or on any agreement by which the rent shall be reserved at any shorter period than three months, shall be rated instead of the occupiers. The Electoral Returns in these and other cases in which this Act has been adopted furnish no data as to the number of occupations within its provisions.

† It appears that in Sunderland there are 610 houses which are each let out in several tenements. The number of these tenements is not stated, but the 610 houses are included in the male occupations at and above 10*l.*, although they are all compounded for.

‡ This number is estimated.

2.—Parliamentary Boroughs in which the Small Tenements Rating Act (13 & 14 Vict. c. 99) is in force, but not throughout all the Parishes comprised therein (including those Boroughs in which there are also Local Rating Acts in operation in certain of the Parishes).

BIRMINGHAM BOROUGH:
Birmingham - - -	4,615 (a)	3,252 (b)	1,363	(a) The gross estimated rental entered in the Rate-book represents the full rent paid to the landlord, inclusive of tenants' rates; and 923 of the occupiers included in the Return do not occupy premises of a clear yearly value of 10 l. (b) It is not the intention of the overseers of the present year to insert the names of compound householders on the list of voters, except where claims have been made by such occupiers under the provisions of Sir William Clay's Act, and therefore this number will be largely reduced. (c) The names of the occupiers of compound tenements do not appear on the rates. The total number of tenements in respect of which the owners are assessed is 2,155; and a deduction of 25 per cent. has been made for female occupiers. (d) Under the Act 3 Geo. 4, c. 24, which is in force in the Bristol Incorporation, the persons making the rate may, "at their discretion," rate and assess the owners when the yearly rent or value shall not exceed 20 l. Acting on this discretion, the persons making the rate do not compound in any case where the Gross Estimated Rental exceeds 10 l. The number included in the Return represents the owners at 10 l. gross estimated rental who compound. (e) The number of tenements, and not of male occupiers, is given. The Local Act in force is the 2 Will. 4, c. 89. (f) The gross estimated rental of houses compounded for is stated to be, in every instance, under the real rental.

REVENUE, TAXATION, &c.

PRELIMINARY NOTE.

WITH reference to the estimated annual amount of Revenue expected to be derived from taxation in England and Scotland respectively, as agreed upon by the Commissioners at the period of the Union, the Order states—

“On which estimate of Revenue, the proportion of Members of Parliament was agreed to be fixed at 513 for England, and 45 for Scotland.”

It is to be observed that upon referring to the Minutes of Conference, published by the Record Commission, and quoted in the order calling for this Return, it does not appear that the respective number of Members of Parliament for the two countries, as agreed upon, was fixed with any relation whatever to the respective amounts of Revenue. On the contrary, it appears that the respective amounts of Revenue, and of Public Debt in each country were required, and were used only for the purpose of ascertaining their several proportions, in order to determine the amount of Equivalent to be paid to Scotland for the sums raised by taxation there, applicable to the debts of England contracted before the Union.

The papers relating to the Revenue were ordered, on 29th April 1706, to be prepared and laid before a Select Committee of 11 of the Commissioners on each side.

These papers were laid before the Committee on the 9th May 1706, and were finally agreed to by the Commissioners on the 6th of July, and ordered to be entered in the Journals of the Treasury.

On the 9th May 1706 the question of the proportion of land-tax to be paid by Scotland was thus referred to: “The Lords Commissioners for Scotland do also agree that all the subjects of the United Kingdom shall be liable to equal land-taxes, or taxes upon the ground-rent, provided the proportion for Scotland shall only be 12,000 l., when 1 s. is imposed on the ground rent in England; so that 48,000 l. shall be reckoned equal to the 4 s. aid now imposed on England, and so proportionately.”

On the 23rd May, “My Lords Commissioners of England agreed to this, the sum for which the Scotch 48,000 l. was declared to be equivalent, being 1,999,763 l. 8 s. 4 d.”

The subject of the respective number of Members of Parliament for the two kingdoms, appears to have been first entered upon by the Commissioners at their meeting on the 7th June 1706, when the following proposal was made by the Commissioners for England:—

“Their Lordships having turned their thoughts to consider what may be a proper and reasonable number for the representative of Scotland in the House of Commons of the United Parliament, do propose to the Lords Commissioners for Scotland that 38 persons be the number by which that part of the United Kingdom, now called Scotland, shall be represented in the House of Commons.”

At the next meeting on the 11th June, the Commissioners for Scotland “having considered the proposal of the Commissioners for England” “do find such difficulties in that matter that they are under a necessity to propose a conference betwixt the Lords Commissioners for both kingdoms on that subject, in which their Lordships doubt not but to satisfy the Lords Commissioners for England that a greater number than is mentioned in the said proposal will be necessary for attaining the happy union of the two kingdoms.”

The Conference was accordingly held on the 12th June, but no details of what took place are stated in the Minutes.

At the next meeting of the Commissioners on the 14th June, “the Lords Commissioners for Scotland having considered the proposal delivered by the Lords Commissioners for England, with the Conference that followed on the subject of that proposal, their Lordships are hopeful that the Lords Commissioners for England are convinced of the real difficulties occurring in that matter on the part of Scotland; and the Lords Commissioners for Scotland do find themselves under an absolute necessity, for bringing to a happy conclusion the union of the two kingdoms, to insist that a greater number than that of 38 be agreed to as the representative of Scotland in the House of Commons in a Parliament of Great Britain.”

At the next meeting, on the 15th June, “The Lords Commissioners for England being assured by the Lords Commissioners for Scotland that there will be found insuperable difficulties in reducing the representatives of Scotland in the House of Commons to 38 Members, the number formerly proposed by the Lords Commissioners for England, do (to show their inclination to remove everything that would of necessity be an obstruction to the perfecting the union of the two kingdoms) propose to the Lords Commissioners for Scotland that 45 Members, and no more, be the number of the representatives for that part of the United Kingdom, now called Scotland, in the House of Commons of the United Kingdom, after the intended union.

“And there being an absolute necessity that the number of Peers to be admitted into the

the House of Lords of the United Kingdom, for that part of the United Kingdom called Scotland, be regulated in proportion to the numbers to be admitted into the House of Commons, do propose that 16 Peers be the quota of Scotland in the House of Peers of the Parliament of the United Kingdom, after the intended union."

At the next meeting on the 18th June, the Lords Commissioners for Scotland having considered the last proposal, "and being most desirous to concur in what is further necessary to finish this Treaty, and at the same time sensible of the difficulties on the part of the Lords Commissioners for England in that matter, do not insist for greater numbers (by virtue of this Treaty) of representatives in the House of Peers and the House of Commons in the Parliament of Great Britain than those proposed by the Lords Commissioners for England."

At the meeting of the 11th July, the Commissioners for England definitively proposed the following number of Members of the first Parliament of Great Britain:

"For England, the present number of Lords; and of Commons,
For Scotland, 16 representative Peers; 45 Members of the House of Commons."

This proposal was agreed to by the Commissioners for Scotland at the next meeting of the Commissioners on the 13th July 1706, and the subject was thus finally disposed of by the Commissioners, the Articles of Union being agreed to by them on the 22nd July 1706.

It appears by the Roll of the Parliament of Scotland of 1702, that the Parliament then consisted of 119 members, viz. :—

- 38 Nobility :—Earl of Marchmont, Lord High Chancellor.
Lord Montgomery, as Lord High Treasurer.
Earl of Melville, Lord President of the Secret Council.
Marquis of Arrandale, Lord Privy Seal.
Duke of Argyll.
Marquis of Lothian.
Earl of Seafield, Secretary.
17 Earls.
3 Viscounts.
8 Lords.
- 3 Lesser Officers of State :
Lord Advocate.
Lord Treasurer Depute.
Lord Justice Clerk.
- 38 Commissioners from the Barons of the 23 Shires.
43 Commissioners for the 43 Burghs.

Total - - 119

In the Act of Union, 5 Anne, c. 8, the Articles of Union, so agreed to by the Commissioners, and subsequently ratified and approved by an Act of the Parliament of Scotland, passed the 16th January 1707, were recited. Article 22 provides, that "by virtue of this Treaty," 16 of the Peers of Scotland at the time of the union were to sit and vote in the House of Lords, and 45 representatives of Scotland in the House of Commons. The Act of Union further recited, and ratified and confirmed, another Act of the Scotch Parliament "for settling the manner of electing the 16 Peers and 45 Members to represent Scotland, in the Parliament of Great Britain;" but in none of these Acts also does any relation appear between the respective number of Members of Parliament for the two countries and their respective amounts of revenue.

In fact, the proportions of the revenues of the two countries at the period of the union were as 97·4 to 2·6, whilst the number of Members actually assigned (513 and 45), were as 92 to 8. If the number of Members had been assigned in the proportion of the revenues of the two countries, England having 513 Members, Scotland would have had 14 only.

Note.—The revenue books now remaining do not show the amount of the gross annual revenue of England, including costs of collection and management, but excluding drawbacks, &c., for the three financial years after the Union with Scotland. They show only the net amount paid into the Exchequer, which is here given. To the net amount of Scotch revenue, remitted from Scotland, and paid into the Exchequer at Westminster, is added the amount applied out of gross revenue in Scotland, in payment of the charges of civil government there.

As a portion only of the land-tax for Scotland for the three years was actually paid into the Exchequer within the period, the total amount of land-tax actually paid into the Exchequer for these years is here stated.

The amount of Post Office revenue for each country separately cannot now be ascertained, and the same proportions of the total net amount of Post Office revenue paid into the Exchequer have been taken for each country as that before the Union, viz., 98 and 2 per cent. respectively.

And, giving to each country the benefit of the following average amounts of Excise Duty † on British spirits consumed therein, the duty on which had been paid in another division of the United Kingdom, as shown in the Annual Reports of the Inland Revenue Commissioners ; viz. - -	1,198,174		794,355		403,819

† In order to show a just comparison of the revenue actually derived from taxation in each of the three countries separately, allowance should be made for all taxed commodities consumed in each country, the duty on which had been paid in another. In the case of sugar, particularly, it is known that a large and increasing proportion of the quantity consumed in Ireland, has of late years been received duty paid, in the form of "crushed sugar" from the refineries on the Clyde. But although this information is obtainable in the case of British spirits, by means of the permit system, and through the Excise regulations, there are no means of computing with any approach to accuracy the amount of this uncredited revenue derived from Customs Duties. (See Appendix to Report of Irish Taxation Committee, No. 330 of 1865, p. 150.)

— IV. —

NUMBER of REPRESENTATIVES which each Division of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland would have, if the 658 Members were allotted according to the Amount of TAXATION contributed by each, during the Three last Financial Years ended the 31st March 1866 ; also, the present Number of Members for each Division, as fixed by the Reform Acts of 1832.

	Number of Representatives.
	England and Wales.	Scotland.	Ireland.
Proportion of 658 Members,
According to amount of taxation, 1864 to 1866, as stated in Account III. - -	519	78	61
According to Reform Acts, 1832 - -	500	53	105

N. B.—By the Reform Acts of 1832, eight Members were added for Scotland, and five for Ireland, being deducted from England and Wales.

If the numbers of Members had been assigned in the proportions of the revenues derived from taxation collected in the three countries respectively, on the average of the three years ended 5th January 1832, the 658 Members would have been distributed as follows:—

England and Wales	-	-	-	-	-	547 Members.
Scotland	-	-	-	-	-	58 „
Ireland	-	-	-	-	-	53 „

It should be added that this mode of arriving at the proper proportion of revenue actually levied from each country cannot be relied upon as perfectly accurate, as explained in the note at the foot of the preceding Account, No. III.

The sewerage rate applies to only a very small portion of the burgh, formed into a separate drainage district under the Act of 1862. The sewer is a long and expensive one, and the annual value of the houses at present drained by the sewer is not great, hence the present high rate; other properties are being built, which will go to reduce the rate. No other part of the burgh is chargeable with sewerage.
